Council Takes Another Look At Three Questions

very welcome. Council agreed 5-3 to refer the plans to staff for study and a report.

SEARS GAS OUTLET

Several months ago Simpson-Sears made application for installation of a gasoline outlet in connection with its service bays in the Hillcrest Mall, Council agreed. Then when the bylaw which would have permitted this installation was presented to council it was defeated.

Representing Simpson-Sears, R. W. Dodds, assistant to the vice-president of planning and development appeared before council and gave a brief explanation of the thinking behind the gasoline dispensing outlets behind the Sears Service Department at Hillcrest Mall. "In our scheme of things in order to provide a community with a full line department store, one of the departments is a gasoline vending facility. If you remove any part it is possible there could be curtailment of the offering of all departments to the public. We are providing certain automotive services in the building and hope to provide a full automotive service facility."

Mayor Lazenby complimented Simpson-Sears, through Mr. Dodds, on the starting salaries for new employees at Hillcrest Mall. "You are certainly upgrading employment opportunities in this town."

Councillor Andy Chateaufort admitted he had voted against the bylaw because it referred to a gas bar. "I couldn't support a gas bar. I can and will support a servicing operation."

"Right from the outset I couldn't see a service centre without a gasoline outlet. It would be like a hot dog without a bun," stated Councillor Lou Wainwright. Councillor Graeme Bales supported the bylaw. "It will be something for a poor guy to do while his wife is spending all his money in the mall."

"I was opposed from the beginning and still am," stated Councillor Dave Stephenson. "I would like to see the mall in operation for a year before a decision is made."

However, the bylaw passed two readings and will be advertised before coming back to council for a third reading.

CHURCH ST. LOT

The question of a parking lot on Church Street was reopened by Mayor Lazenby, who expressed his disappointment at planning committee's recent decision not to entertain an application for a rezoning of a residential lot to general commercial to accommodate parking for Richmond Square. This decision was reached after almost 100% objection by residents of both sides of Church Street between Centre Street East and Dufferin Street. The mayor pointed out the great need for off-street parking to ensure the continuance of the downtown Yonge Street core as a viable business community.

Regional Councillor Gordon Rowe, member of council's parking and transportation committee, referred to traffic congestion on Yonge Street and the necessity of removing parked cars to alleviate this condition. "We have an obligation and seem to be bucked at every turn."

"It was the weight of public opinion," explained Councillor David Stephenson, chairman of the planning committee. The mayor also questioned why the business community was not invited to the meeting. He said council had requested that both residents and merchants be consulted. "It was decided that prior to recognizing the application, we should assess the opinion of the people in the area, because if much opposition existed, it would be voiced at an OMB hearing, and we discovered that the residents were practically unanimous in opposition," explained Councillor Lois Hancey. "This is the only block on Church that has as yet gone untouched. In the past studies have stated that public parking is available to Yonge Street but all those facilities are not being used. People prefer to park in front of the Yonge Street outlet. To encroach into a very pleasant residential area I didn't think feasible — nor did the people most directly affected."

"I think one of the residents summed it up after the meeting," reported Mr. Stephenson. "When he said, we expect it to happen in the future, but not now."

"It won't happen at all now except through expropriation," declared the mayor, "and that's an expensive deal." He pointed out that the town had indicated future planning on the area would be general commercial and nobody had objected.

"I firmly believe that what we were asked to do was morally wrong," stated Councillor Andy Chateaufort. "The people were told that at some time in the future, to make it financially feasible, one developer would have to purchase the whole area from Yonge to Church. I am not prepared to destroy a nice residential area."

The question was sent to planning committee of the whole with residents and business people in the area to be notified.

Regional Councillor Gordon Rowe, member of council's parking and transportation committee, referred to traffic congestion on Yonge Street and the necessity of removing parked cars to alleviate this condition. "We have an obligation and seem to be bucked at every turn."

Council Reaffirms Open Policy Senior Citizens Membership

Richmond Hill Council reaffirmed its policy, that in order for local senior citizen organizations to be eligible for municipal subsidy by the provision of premises, all eligible residents within the corporate boundaries of the municipality shall be able to obtain membership, at a special meeting in committee, held in camera July 17, it was reported at Monday's council meeting. Present at the in camera meeting were Mayor William Lazenby; Councillor Louis Wainwright, chairman of the committee; Regional Councillors Mrs. Lois Hancey and Gordon Rowe and Councillors Andy Chateaufort, Jack Major and William Corcoran.

Representing Senior Citizens Club 35 at the meeting were: Gil Clubine, Gladys Stevens, Grace Sayers, Mary Pattenden, Elsie Burnie, Anna Dewsbury, Albert Pattenden, Kay Seymour, Archie Seymour, Jack Sheahan, Emma Masters, Bill Andrews, Beatrice Cook, Charles Attridge, Gwen Grist, George Taylor, May Hunt, Joe Horne and Norman Stephenson.

It was also decided that the Richmond Hill Senior Citizens' Club 35 be requested to put the following motion for a change in their constitution before its general membership for adoption and that the premises leased at 10,149 Yonge Street not be made available until it is adopted:

"That the boundaries for residency for eligibility for membership in the Richmond Hill Senior Citizens' Club 35 be the corporate boundaries of the Town of Richmond Hill.

The recommended model is a BAC, VNC 120 condenser with 15 hp fan motor and a 2 hp circulating pump.

Council agreed to hire Lee, Elken and Becksted, Architects, to carry out exterior site work for the Woodbridge Pool.

This includes designing and installation of landscaping to enhance the building and to integrate the site with the natural surroundings of river and parkland.

28,000 Population In Milliken Could Be A Problem - Adams

"enthusiastic" over it and "very concerned."

He said that "we could very easily refuse such a development but then you also have a responsibility to the people who need homes. It has a lot of implications."

Councillor Adams would not hazard a guess as to how long it would take for the subdivision development to be ready if approved. "It could be considerably less than two years," he said, "because we're practically being handed a secondary plan."

Steps the application will have to take involve going before planning committee, then to its staff for processing, to council and then to the Region of York for its approval or disapproval.

The development would comprise an average of 28 people per acre which Councillor Adams feels is rather a high density.

"This compares to the 18 people per acre in Phase 3 at Thornhill which is more to our liking," he said. Type of housing would range from single homes to semi-detached, townhouses and stacked townhouses.

Councillor Adams emphasized that his comments "are strictly my own personal viewpoint and not that of council as a whole. I'm not sure how they feel."
