WARD 3 WANTS GREENBELT AT LANGSTAFF

"There is going to be Highway 407 and a 600 foot hydro corridor through there," she said.

Mr. Rimmon said, "It doesn't make sense if the services are going to be there and the GO train is going through there to believe we can withstand the pressure to develop the jail farm. I don't think we can depend on a physical barrier to preserve the identity of Richmond Hill."

TWO-WAY DIALOGUE

"One of the purposes of this meeting is to have a two-way dialogue and if you have constructive suggestions as to how we can create a separation between communities we would like to hear them," he continued.

"Where public investment is highly committed with highways and sewers, development follows. The jail farm is shown on the map designated industrial with one corner at the north as residential, and has been so designated by the official plan since Metro was in charge of planning in this area. The property is owned by the City of Toronto. We have made no changes as yet."

NICE ENTRANCE

"Personally I think it would make a nice entrance to Richmond Hill if retained as parkland and would give the country feeling to Richmond Hill. I don't like the idea of cramming anything right down to Highway 7," said another ratepayer. "We have nothing much to offer except open space."

Another ratepayer suggested all urban development, including the proposed industrial on Highway 7 be moved a mile and a quarter north of the area indicated on the map. This would bring it north of Carrville Road. He claimed there is no development along Highway 7 between Bathurst and Bayview and only a few houses between Bayview and the Third Line.

"There is absolutely no need to have development along 7. Richmond Hill needs the open space," he said as he pointed out that on Highway 2 it has become impossible to determine where one community ends and another begins.

In regard to bypassing Yonge Street, Mr. Rimmon said local merchants would like to see a large volume of traffic to bring business to their stores. He said the synchronization of the traffic lights for a time was broken but was repaired recently and conditions are much improved.

"I'm not that afraid of industrial development," stated Doug Hitchins. "Some industrial buildings are a lot more attractive than apartment buildings." But he agreed with those who wished to keep the jail farm as green belt. He went on to say we are a car-oriented society and the people who patronize the Yonge Street merchants are, for the most part, those who walk. The business people who will survive in the downtown area are those who cater to the walking public, he said.

623 ACRES

John Birchall said the jail farm contains 623 acres and is owned by the City of Toronto. He said the present official plan does indicate industrial development but the zoning bylaw says agriculture.

"When the domed stadium was proposed the residential population was stated as 13,000 people. Without the stadium we could be talking about 15,000 population. Before Hillcrest Mall the traffic count on Yonge Street between Highway 7 and Markham Road was 18,000 cars, it is probably three times that now. The TTC recently asked the town to ban parking on Yonge Street in the evenings and Saturdays. Do we want to destroy the town? If we put 10,000 to 13,000 people on the jail farm we will be destroying the open area and we want to maintain it. We do need a parkway belt and we do need a definite demarcation," he said.

Another ratepayer pointed out that in Munich, Germany, there is a section where automobiles are not allowed. "It is crowded with people and they walk. The downtown portions are rings, circulating out, and the density of traffic gets less closer in. There is no reason Richmond Hill can't do the same."

OBSERVATORY IN DANGER

"If you really believe what you have written," said another ratepayer, referring to statements contained in the working goals and objectives, "you will preserve our green belt. We all want a green belt, we want some green left. It is quite ironic that the only picture of a town building in the council chamber is of the observatory and we are now doing our best to eliminate it. If too much development comes in the south end of town, they're going to be washed right out."

"So far there is an urban designation on the land. We haven't yet said what kind of uses we would prefer," was Miss Pounder's answer. "We will be looking at it in more detail. We will have to look at the regional view also. Development to the south in Thornhill will also affect the observatory. If we put the urban development farther north, the people would be creating more traffic through the rest of Richmond Hill as they move from home to work and return."

"The area between Bathurst and Yonge is fairly well developed already," stated Mr. Rimmon. "It has been designated part of the parkway belt. Between Yonge and Bayview the provincial plan envisages services to Richmond Hill would go through that area. While we can draw lines on a map it may be a little bit unrealistic to expect this area will lie there forever when it has services available, access to transportation and is publicly owned. There are certain facts of life that must be faced."

FEDERAL PARK?

"Have you considered applying to the federal government to buy the jail farm to create a park there?" asked another ratepayer.

"The problem so far is that the land is not for sale," answered Mr. Rimmon. "We can plan it but all we can do is to adopt policies which could control its development. It would be very expensive."

"I think the City of Toronto should control it," said another ratepayer. "They should create the park. Metro will soon come up to Highway 7 and then they would have all that parkland for their residents."

MAIN TAIN RURAL AREAS

The plan indicates that agricultural areas will be maintained except for the six concession block from Highway 7 to Elgin Mills Sideroad and from Bathurst to Bayview and a small area around Oak Ridges-Lake Wilcox. A ratepayer who is actively farming told the meeting about the problems of the farmer in this area.

"With the way Richmond Hill is growing it is almost impossible to farm any more and we are tempted to sell out." She said recent development in the area has interfered with the river branch on which they depended for additional water and projected work on Elgin Road East will further interfere with it. The proposed extension of Buttonville Airport will also make life more unpleasant in that area, she maintained.

"It is things like this that make most people who are seriously farming want out. What are you going to do with the land then, if it is abandoned and left to grow up in weeds?" She also said much of the land designated agriculture is already in the hands of developers.

Mr. Birchall said the projected 105,000 population did not include any population for the rural areas. "You should set something down and not leave it wide open."

SOME DEVELOPMENT MAYBE

"It may be possible to have some development on large lots which won't affect the aquifers," replied the planner, "but we don't have the answers yet. The balance is a very delicate one but our prime goal is rural area."

"It's very necessary to act now before the land is all bought up, stated Mr. Birchall. "Maybe that will encourage some of the land to be returned to agriculture."

"But it happened 15 years ago," countered Mr. Rimmon. "It's not all that simple. The land was bought on expectations and the prices were paid on those expectations. It's happening all the time."

WHAT ABOUT WALKERS?

Another ratepayer who said he liked to walk, told the group he had only two choices — to walk on Yonge Street and be asphyxiated or use the side streets where there are no sidewalks and take his chances with traffic. He asked if any thought is being given to those who like to walk.

Mr. Rimmon replied that in new developments hiking trails and bicycle paths are being established following the water-courses, and gave as an example a planned hiking trail-bicycle path in the BAF subdivision. "We are still not in agreement with the parks board on the balance between active and passive parks but will be meeting with them to solve this problem."

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Rimmon said, "We are holding public meetings with developers. You can bet your bottom dollar they will oppose our new plan and people within our town will be in disagreement about the land uses."

"Whatever way you look at it is going to be difficult. Council will have to make the final decision and it will have to be made in the interests of the majority of the people. In any event it will end up before the OMB who will have to adjudicate between the town's position and those who oppose it. Whenever you start laying down lines on the map and adopting policies somebody is going to be hurt and those people have the right to object."

CEDAR VALLEY—An industrial park proposed for this area has been turned down by the Municipal Board. Residents waged a successful campaign to stop the 85-acre development.

CARD OF THANKS

WILLIAMS — It is with deep appreciation that we wish to thank all our kind friends, relatives, and good neighbors, for all their words of condolence, cards, letters and floral contributions in the loss of a dear wife, mother and grandmother. A special thanks to the W. R. Scott & Sons Funeral Home, the Elder Mills Institute, Vaughan Council and staff, York Regional Council and staff, York Regional Police, the Rev. Bailey Snow, Rev. James Hodgson and Father J. S. MacLean, for their presence and consoling words and to all others who helped in any way — a sincere Thank you. From Garnet, Betty Lou, Margaret and DiAnne. clw10

Being A Dog Owner Has Its Responsibilities

Local Canine Control Officer James Ryan of Gormley says:

In summer dogs need shelter out of the rain and the direct hot rays of the sun.

In winter dogs need comfortable accommodations up out of drafts and a supply of dry straw for bedding at least. They must be provided with fresh water at all times, adequate food, and they need exercise both summer and winter, plus a little love and attention. If you cannot supply these basic requirements, then please do not be a dog owner.
