Fund raising for Richvale hockey

Residents of Richvale community had a wonderful opportunity to acquire the makings of a successful Hallowe'en as well as of a merry Christmas at the bazaar held by the Richvale Minor Hockey Women's Auxiliary in the Spruce Avenue Lions Hall Saturday.

A scary witch and ghost presided over the table crowded with pumpkins, the raw material for numerous artistic jack-o'-lanterns which will be seen Thursday night throughout the area. Left to right above are Joan Celsie, Ward 6 Councillor, Candidate Gerry Field and Marlene Grodzinski.

'Largest apartment development project ever proposed for Richmond Hill

Included in the plans is a two-level recreation building to be built in the first phase. It will contain a day care centre with a capacity for 45 children. This will probably be let to a private agency to operate, according to a spokesman for Cadillac.

Children's space
This will be more than ample space for children from the condominium development and the rental apartments planned for the southern site, with the excess spaces being made available to other families in the community. However, the other recreational facilities will serve only those people in the condominium complex, he said. Included will be an outdoor playground, an outdoor pool and sun deck, meeting, craft and changerooms.

Also planned is a seven to 10-foot berm along the Yonge Street frontage to create a buffer between the residential area and the heavy highway traffic.

Road access
Two apartment buildings are planned for the area on the south side of BAIF Boulevard. BAIF has provided an access from Hillcrest Mall to BAIF Boulevard and a church site to the west of this property.

There will be 286 units in the two rental buildings containing a mix of bachelor, one, two and three bedroom suites in a good market ratio, the Cadillac representative said. The nearest building to Yonge Street will be nine storeys high, plus the ground floor. The more westerly building will be 10 storeys plus the ground floor.

Tenant parking will be underground with a quarter space for each suite for visitors provided above ground. Recreation facilities will include an outdoor swimming pool, with sun deck and cabanas containing change rooms and showers.

Wainwright

(Continued from Page 1) various positions, the last 18 years as graphic arts manager of photographic and printing departments, with a staff of nearly 40 employees. At present he is teaching two days a week at Ontario Hydro's Training Centre at Orangeville.

Mr. Wainwright is married and has three children — Donna, RN, who is married and living in Richmond Hill; Dean, a professional ski director who lives in Quebec; and Guy who graduated this year in law and is at present articling in Cochrane.

Mr. Wainwright is prepared to devote full time to the work of a regional councillor, if elected, "to ensure that Richmond Hill is represented full time and effectively at the regional level."

"I believe we have to accept a reasonable growth rate," he stated, "which will bring us up to the projected figure of 105,000 by the year 2,000. I am not opposed to mobile homes 'per se', as I believe they may be one answer to providing low cost housing for the segments of our population who otherwise would never be able to own a home of their own."

But I feel they should be studied as a component part of the housing stock and not in isolation and should conform to the overall Official Plan of the region. They should not be segregated from other urban development."

Markham town planning director Power quits

Markham Town Council last week accepted "with deep regret," the resignation of Planning Director William Power. The chief planner will be leaving December 31 to take a similar position in Victoria County, near Lindsay.

Regional Councillor Bob Adams, chairman of the planning committee, said news of Mr. Power's resignation came as a shock.

Fantastic effort

He said the planning director had done "a fantastic job".

"I have never met anyone who was so concerned with people," Mr. Adams said.

agreed with him.

Enjoyed work
In his letter of resignation Mr. Power, who joined the town in May of 1971, said he enjoyed working in Markham and hoped that "in some way" he had contributed to it.

He was not available for further comment. Two other Markham planners left recently. The town's exploding rate of growth has put tremendous pressure on the department. The previous planning director Kunio Hidaka left the town amid a flurry of controversy.

From the police blotter

This is a h-h-h-h hold-up, s-s-s-s strip!

Pushers start young in this part of the country.

Last week, York Regional Police reported three juveniles severely beat another juvenile when he was unable to come up with $15 for a marijuana purchase.

Police said the three youthful pushers waited for their buyer when he left Huron Heights High School in Newmarket at 4 pm, October 22, and proceeded to beat him up.

The youth suffered a broken collar bone.

Nervous bandit
An attendant at a self-serve gas bar in Thornhill was robbed of $216 and made to strip in an armed robbery about 4:40 am, October 21, by a stuttering bandit.

Dale Long told police a man had come into his office at Baron Petroleum, 7377 Yonge Street, as if to pay for his gas. He then drew a gun and ordered the attendant to put all the money from the till into a Brinks money bag.

The attendant was next told to remove his clothes, rip out the telephone line and lie down on the floor.

He was then told that, if he left within five minutes, the bandit's friend, who was allegedly waiting outside, would blow his head off with a shotgun.

After Long felt it was safe to move, he ran to his house next door, and telephoned police.

The robber was described as six feet, two inches, 200 pounds, 35 to 40, light brown hair, clean shaven, and spoke with a nervous stutter.

Arrest Hill man

Two young men, one from Richmond Hill and one from Thornhill, have been arrested in connection with a late-evening rampage at Harvey's Drive-In Restaurant, 9174 Yonge Street in Richmond Hill, October 23.

Police said a man came in and ordered some food and left after getting his order. However, he came back in shortly afterward and said he didn't receive it.

He went out again and came back with four companions. Police said one of the men jumped over the counter and started serving food to his friends, while another took $200 from the till. They then fled.

Arrested and facing charges of robbery and creating public mischief are Albert Allan, 20 of Birch Avenue, and Michael McDaib, 21, all of Downview; and Karl Ellison, 22, of Willowdale.

Wild brawl

Police have arrested four men in connection with a large-scale donnybrook at Jane and 7 Country Club, 7477 Jane Street, October 26, about 1:20 am.

Police said between 50 to 70 people participated in the fracas, which saw police sent for reinforcements.

Facing possible charges of obstructing police, causing a disturbance, assault with intent and attempting to prevent arrest are Eric Evans, 20; Adrien Giardini, 21; and Michael McDaib, 21, all of Downview; and Karl Ellison, 22, of Willowdale.

The Town of Vaughan

BRADFORD — Simcoe Street and Holland Street West were closed for several hours recently to enable a 35-ton building to be moved to a new site. The former town garage located on Back Street was moved to Melbourne Crescent, to make a complete service centre for the town works department and the PUC vehicles and equipment. It is 44 feet wide and 60 feet long.

The deceased's canoe was found overturned a mile from the shore.

Drowning

William Snow, 41, of Whitchurch-Stouffville, was believed to have been the victim of a drowning, after his body was found along the north shore of Georgina Township, October 27.

Police said Snow left his cottage at Eight-Mile Point, RR 1, Orillia, in a canoe at 4:30 pm, October 25. When he failed to return a search was conducted.

The deceased's canoe was found overturned a mile from the shore.

Yonge setback

The lower building will be set back from Yonge Street about 70-80 feet and the higher one will be back more than 400 feet. There will be playground facilities and a sauna in each building.

An interdenominational group is interested in the church site. It is hoped to start construction of both condominium and rental units next year.

Hallowe'en pranks I remember

Mayor's Story

Vaughan Mayor Garnet Williams' favorite story is about a trick that backfired.

When he was a boy attending a one-room schoolhouse west of Woodbridge, there was a man and his son who hauled gravel with a horse and wagon.

Each evening they would leave one loaded wagon in the schoolyard to be picked up in the morning.

But one Hallowe'en the 12 biggest boys in the school returned to push, grunt and groan until they turned the wagon so its tongue was left sticking through the fence.

When the owner returned in the morning, he appeared to have two options: take the fence down or try to have his horses drive the wagon straight through.

Instead, he consulted with the teacher and she volunteered 12 strong boys to push the wagon backwards. Guess which 12 boys.

Roman Story

Markham Mayor Tony Roman said Port Perry was a pretty dead spot when he was a boy.

The mothers made good candy and cookies for Hallowe'en and the kids had a lot of fun making their rounds.

But straining to recall some of the high jinks of the older boys he remembered one particular two-seater outhouse.

When it went over one October 31, the loud yells of the owner could be heard from inside.

Lazenby Story

In Belleville, Ontario, where Richmond Hill Mayor William Lazenby grew up, Hallowe'en was an evening to advance the rivalry between the public high school and the private school.

Almost every year the boys from Belleville Collegiate would pay a visit to Albert College to knock over the goal posts.

Cow Bell Ringer

Harry Sayers, an employee at the Richmond Hill town offices, said the volunteer fire department in town was at one time called by a bell on the top of the M.L. McConaghy Public School.

Hallowe'en nights they became accustomed to making several fast trips to the fire hall but one year they were surprised to find it was not a young scallawag on the end of the rope.

A cow had been led to the school to serve as a persistent bell-ringer.
