Young travellers talk about Russia

A group of Richmond Hill High School students working with the world relations committee of Richmond Hill YWCA is presenting "A Russian Adventure" at Don Head Secondary School, Vaughan Road at Trench Street in Richmond Hill at 8 pm Thursday night.

The students, along with many more from York Region, took last year's winter school break to find out as much as they could about Russia. They left the Hill armed with cameras, films, chewing gum, and diaries and returned with many souvenirs and memories of friendly people in a fascinating country. Seven young people are involved in the Y-sponsored program: Janet Hutchinson, Sue Seltzer, Karen Thiel, Robin Heider, Chris Stephenson, Sue Rye and Glynis Walker.

Their presentation will be illustrated with colored slides and souvenirs.

The Y committee has obtained numerous Russian-made gift-type items to be sold at the boutique which will be set up at Don Head for the evening.

Round out the evening, Russian refreshments will be served. Tickets at $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for students, may be obtained at the YWCA office, 10225 Yonge Street, or at the school the evening of the presentation.

Proceeds will be used by the world relations committee for work with women in South East Asia, Africa, Latin America, Caribbean, Fiji and Canada.

Schiller wants rotation in council appointments

Richmond Hill mayorally candidate Dave Schiller this week called for a regular turnover of membership on council-appointed boards and committees.

"Membership on these bodies allows individuals a unique opportunity of getting to know the system, of giving service to the community and in providing a forum to advance one's ideas and opinions", Schiller says.

"Because of this uniqueness, appointments to these boards and committees should not become entrenched."

If elected, he pledged to recommend to council that advertisements be placed to encourage participation on these appointed bodies.

"Policies of appointment should be adopted to ensure new vacancies year by year with equitable ward representation," he says.

Arenas review Schiller calls for "a thorough review of the methods by which we manage the town's arenas."

"The present arena board of management was established when only one arena was in operation. We now have three with a fourth under way."

He says he has been "concerned for some time that we may not be providing sufficient general community use of the facilities."

The review should be such so as to hear representation from all organizations that use the arenas as well as interested individuals and should enquire into the type of management, user priorities, fees, accountability of management and the like", he said.

Schiller says, it is important to "involve interest groups in the formulation of town policy because municipal government action or inaction can affect many groups in our community."

He says "it should not always be necessary to await an outcry of dissent until moving positively to correct or improve a situation."

In addition, he says, "a community should not have to rely solely on its council to take appropriate and timely steps."

More participation "It is my hope interested groups will soon come forward to assist council in designing new and relevant policies in areas such as senior citizen concerns, youth programs, assistance to the handicapped, and neighbourhood preservation and enhancement."
