

Need Pioneer House volunteers

Women who have admired the charm and grace of pre-Confederation life style as portrayed in the elegance of the Gibson House Museum in Willowdale can now join its volunteer staff.

Bond Steelers tie Thornhill

The Richmond Hill Bond Steel Minor Midget Double A team tied Thornhill 5-5 Sunday sparked by the three goal performance of Chris DeGeer. Dale Strang scored the other two.

Two assists each went to Danny McVeigh, Ron Abernethy and David Forester and one each to DeGeer and Doug Lewis.

Pat Bertrand led the Thornhill offense with two goals and one each for Jerome Flanagan, Marc Whitehead and Matt Nicholls.

A Saturday game saw Richmond Hill dropping a 3-2 game to Orillia. Dave Forester scored one goal assisted by Ricky Girard and Doug Lewis got the other one from Girard.

tour guides, acquainting visitors with the fascinating history of the house and the ever-changing displays in the galleries of the museum wing.

The restored pioneer house, home of 1837 rebel, surveyor, member of the legislature of Upper Canada, and Willowdale's first postmaster David Gibson and his family — needs people to demonstrate 19th Century craft techniques and give prepared talks on the house and historically related topics to schools and clubs.

Volunteers should be at least 16, be able to commit two days a month to the project, and participate in the orientation program that will be given before they assume their duties.

For additional information call the Volunteer Centre, North York, 145 Sheppard Avenue East, 222-2551.

Effective reading course offered at York University January 7

A decade or so ago, with the ever-increasing popularity of radio, television and other electronic media, there were four predictions books would become virtually obsolete, that people would lose interest in reading.

Such has not been the case. More people than ever are writing books, the printed message rates high in public relations, and the amount of published material has increased, not decreased.

So important, in fact, has the printed word become, that effective reading is being taught as a recognized credit course in many secondary and post-secondary institutions.

Course at York One such course is being offered at the centre for continuing education at York University, with winter classes scheduled to begin the week of January 7.

The course is designed to improve both speed and comprehension in reading as well as listening ability, to meet the needs of people with varied backgrounds. Classes are small, the latest mechanical equipment is used and instructors consult regularly with students. Classes are offered Saturday mornings, Tuesday or Thursday evenings at three hours per session. They are held at Glendon Campus, Bayview and Lawrence Avenues. For information and to register for the effective reading course or the effective writing program contact the centre of continuing education, 667-2502. Cost for each program is $80.
