Noted violinist at Seniors' Christmas party

Cancer Society
The Christmas meeting of the King Cancer Society will be held December 2 at 8 pm at the home of Mrs. Ann Wilson, Kingsworth Drive, Kingscross Estates. This will be a work meeting and would be members please bring their Christmas presents for the Aurora Gift Cupboard, unwrapped.

39'ers
The Senior Citizens of King are treating themselves to their own Christmas Party this year December 9 with dinner at 5:30 pm. Entertainment is being handled by twin master of ceremonies by Kat Atkins and Merv Long. Tom McQuiston, renowned violinist, accompanied by Allie Burlison will perform as will the Bolton Entertainers under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Addison. The happy face of Mel Atkins will shine from behind Santa's beard. All this festivity will take place in the King Community Centre.

Skiing
King Valley Ski Centre, hopefully expecting cold weather and snow, has issued a brochure announcing its services. The Ski School will be under the direction of Kurt Larchmann of the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance, assisted by 40 instructors. King Valley Ski Centre is only 15 minutes from King City. The slopes have been designed and shaped to interest every type of skier, from beginner to advanced. Skiing is available day or night, on natural or artificial snow, groomed by experts. Baby sitting, rentals, lessons, restaurants, and social events are all offered. For further information please call 889-4891.
Church news
December 2 is a professional development day for the Kinghorn Campus and the worship committee of All Saint's Anglican proposes to take a group of children up to King City Lodge to visit and sing Christmas Carols.

December 1, the organist of All Saint's Anglican Church, James Leonard, Mus. Bac., A.R.C.C.O. will give an organ recital at 4:30 pm.
Theatre Aurora
"The Odd Couple" is now into rehearsals with the following people: Graham Constantine, Bob Cooke, Cy Buck, Fred Codd, Jim Stanbury, Rick Wood, Joyce Stewart, and Eleanor Warren. The producer is Mary Kamcke, and the following people are involved behind the scenes: set design - Cy Buck; set construction - Cy Buck and Tim Baker-Pearce; Stage manager - Frank Buck; costumes - Pat Ham; properties - Rhea Morris and Marg Locke; lighting - Roy Eveleigh; prompter - Ellen Walton; sound - Geoff Pierpoint; furnishings - Pat Pierpoint and Barb McGowan; tickets - Rose Dyson; front of house - Judy Rodgers; and publicity - Phil Knibbs.

The play will run January 9-11; 16-18 at the Factory Theatre.
The next general meeting is tonight at 8 pm at the Factory Theatre. For this occasion, scenes from several plays will be staged as a workshop, to enable members to study new material and provide exercise for those not currently involved on stage in major productions.
A musical is being planned for the last two weeks in May with Julian Greenwood as director.

Norm and I recently initiated a "family excursion" to visit Casa Loma in downtown Toronto. It was very enjoyable as we were escorted throughout the Castle's rooms by recorded voices portraying Sir Henry and Lady Pellatt. A great improvement over guides.
We didn't manage to get to the All-Candidate's meeting at All Saint's Church November 20 but hear that it was extremely well attended. No apathy in King apparently!

Kingsmen beef it up again at United Church

By Norma Matthews
The Kingsmen of King City United Church outdid themselves as they presented the 3rd annual dinner and variety show November 16 in the auditorium. Nearly 250 people turned out and enjoyed a dinner of roast beef, salad, gravy, baked potatoes, tea, coffee, and a variety of mouth-watering home-made pies. In order to accommodate that number of people, the dinner was divided into two sittings with a film entitled "Landscape" (produced by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources) shown to those who finished early.

up and stretch our legs before we experienced a skit that nearly brought the house down with laughter. "Saloon Days" opened to the "taped sound of thundering hoofs and to the sight of the Kingsmen dressed in white cowboy hats standing in front of a saloon bar. (Whatever was the lady's bra doing in the saddlebag carried by Zoltan Katona?) Three mini-skirt and bra dressed buxom lads danced around the stage and then came down into the audience to plant a juicy lipstick-smudged kiss on the forehead of yours truly as well as that of Bill Curran. You've never seen a girly show or a fan dance unless you have seen Charlina, Glendina and Artina do their routine. (Charlie Robson, Glenn Love and Art Johnson).

The finale was the same as last year's but just as good. With a darkened stage all we could see of the Kingsmen were their fluorescent orange bow ties and hat brims, white gloves, complimented by cut-out happy faces suspended from above.
A newcomer to the group, Howard Robles, was in a few special skits (including the one called Ditch Diggers) and the Liberal forecasts this fellow to be one of the stars of next year's show. Our congratulations to Rev. Grant Brown who was brave enough to be part of the cast in this his first year in the show.

Being the final performance, presentations of large "mum happy faces were made to Gary Hubbard, Roy Robson and Ted Monroe, technical director.
Other persons involved with the show were Art Rossiter, Ken Branston, John Manson, Bill Brown, Jack Garbutt, Lorne Barker, Glenn Barker, Earl Lowe, Allan Gellatly, Lorne Scott, Don Barker, Romy Bowen, John David, Bob Gillies, John Kell, Murdoch McPhee, Don Munroe, Bill Pollock, Gary Roseblade, and Al Henderson.
Our thanks to KCU for "inviting" the press and extending such hospitality to both Donna and me throughout the evening.

Though feared by his enemies, the mighty Kublah Khan was loved and respected by his subjects. To show their affection for him, they decided one year to hold a great birthday celebration in his honor, and because he showed no favourites, they showed no difference in their gifts - all were wrapped in white and looked the same. And the emperor valued all the gifts equally, for they all bore the same degree of devotion and love, no matter what their value.

In Parnesville at the turn of this century, many people felt then as now that Christmas festivities had become nothing more than a meaningless ritual of Santa Claus, lavish refreshments and self-indulgence. They tried having parties where gifts were brought to be shared by others, but those who couldn't afford expensive gifts with ornate wrappings often stayed away. The minister's wife in Parnesville remembered the legend of Kublah Khan, and instituted a similar practice of giving white-wrapped, anonymous gifts. The custom has since spread to many congregations.
