Rev. Shepherd also presented the boys with their letter T's.

York Chamber and Symphony Orchestras perform Jan. 24

When the York Chamber Orchestra was formed last fall, the motivating force behind the group was Dr. James Knowles, violist with York Regional Symphony.

The chamber group is made up of string players of the symphony, giving them an opportunity to work together to improve their ensemble playing, and to attract other players who are interested in the repertoire of music available to a small string orchestra.

Members of the group are: violins: Dick Abram, Alice Burnett, Ernie Merkeley, George Moseley, Timothy Pigden and Howard Smith; violas: James Knowles and Ray Thompson; cello: Rita Schoenhof and Ise Thompson; stringed bass: Gordon Luborsky; harp: Julian Greenwood. The conductor is Gary Kulesha.

The chamber orchestra promotes the interests of the orchestra at large, and on January 24 will be performing Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 4 at the York Regional Symphony Orchestra's concert at St. Andrew's College, Aurora.

Soloists for this presentation include violinist Eileen Bordessa who teaches the string players and is a former member of Halifax Symphony Orchestra and Hamilton Symphony Orchestra.

Other soloists will be Jim Allen, a talented amateur flautist who is head of the English department at Thornlea Secondary School in Thornhill, and Lynne Greenwood, flautist, formerly of the faculty of music at the University of Alaska and now a member of the Paul Brodie

Big dance Valentine's Day

Langstaff's Snow Queen entrants for the Richmond Hill Winter Carnival were voted on last week. The grade 9 representative is Valerie King, from grade 10 we have Laura Brown, from Grade 11 Gail Amodeo, grade 12 Corinne Harrison and Barb Robinson is the representative for grade 13.

On Valentine's Day Langstaff will host "A Foot in Cold Water". Everybody's welcome and we hope to make this dance as much of a success as our last.

Things are getting pretty hectic in class around now as all the teachers are trying to cram in everything they haven't taught, but should have, before exam week — next week — from January 27 to 31 we will all be studying hard.

Winning volleyball

Turning to better thoughts, Langstaff's Girls volleyball teams has started the season with the usual style and hasn't lost a match yet in inter-school competition.

Our boys' basketball teams, however, has not been faring so well. We hope the season will end better than it has started.

Band concert

Our Langstaff Band held a fund-raising concert January 15 for their trip to Kingston in May. The program began with the senior band, conducted by Mrs. Victoria Fraser and was followed by a solo on the banjo from Dana Curnock. Dana also conducted the junior band during the second half of the evening. This good turnout by parents and students enabled the band to raise enough money for the bus fare for their trip.

Seniors whomp Thornhill 66-29

Well, exams are over and done with for another semester, and out of the depths lurk the fear of the next. Oh well, there's not much you can do about it.

Basketball action

Thursday, the Juniors and Seniors of Bayview played Thornhill at Bayview in basketball. Unfortunately the Juniors lost 41-55 but still kept up with strong effort.

High scorer for Bayview was Aiden Killeane, coming through with eight points, and good work through the entire game.

The Seniors are still undefeated, and just gained another victory. They won 29-66 with good 'ole Paul Jarvie pulling off 23 of the 66 points. Their defence played super along with their offence. Yea Bayview!

Snow Princesses

The Snow Princesses from our school this year for the winter carnival are: from Year I Janice Taylor, Year 2 Angie Steneson, Year 3 Cathy Deciantis, Year 4 Pam Grasse and Year 5 Elka Woldenga. Best of luck to you all.
