Exhibitions at A.G.O.

Two interesting shows run until May 4 at the Art Gallery of Ontario.

"De La" by Michael Snow is a kinetic sculpture in aluminum and steel with electronic controls, television camera and four monitors. The artist, who is internationally acclaimed for his paintings, sculpture and films, originally used "De La" on top of a mountain in Quebec to shoot his film "La Region Centrale". The machine was created to move the film camera in predetermined patterns, horizontally, vertically, diagonally and at varying speeds.

When the film was completed, Snow had the machine adapted to be used with a television camera and monitors, and named the resulting work "De La". Michael Snow's "De La" is on loan from the National Gallery of Canada.

A one-man show, "An Intuitive Gambol" by Michael Czerewko, a young Ontario sculptor, includes 30 works of the past two years, and is on view in the J. S. McLean Gallery of A.G.O.

Czerewko, who lives on a farm near Havelock, uses materials dictated by his surroundings to create environmental situations, sculptures, drawings and photographs. The artist has exhibited at galleries in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and Sackville, N.B., and has been given three other one-man shows.

Workshop on women

Many women today experience difficulty in meeting traditional role expectations and adjusting to the changing life patterns emerging in our society. To help meet this need Seneca College, King Campus is offering a workshop on women and work at four different locations — Richmond Hill United Church, Yonge and Centre Streets, May 6; Markham Public Library, 199 Main Street North, May 7; Eaton Hall, Seneca King Campus, May 14; and St. Paul's Anglican Church, 439 D'Arcy Street, Newmarket, May 15.

The workshop will feature a presentation of films on various situations women face in their family and working lives, and information kits will be provided.

Registration will be limited on a first come basis. The fee of $4.00 must accompany registration and be received by May 1. Mail to: Admissions Office, Seneca College, King Campus, R. R. 3, King City.

Legion crafts fair

The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 371, is sponsoring an Arts and Crafts Annual Fair, Saturday, May 3, at the Legion Hall, Bolton. Approximately 30 artist craftsmen will be exhibiting dolls, batik, jewellery, leather items, pewter, pottery, needlepoint, sculptures, carvings, drawings, figurines and wall hangings.

Lunch and refreshments under the auspices of the ladies' auxiliary will be available. Proceeds will aid the Legion Community Benevolent Fund which during the past year has made substantial donations to several charitable organizations in the area.

High school, college Canadian literature statistics startle

Mrs. Brita Mickleburgh impressed members of the York County Branch, University Women's Club, with some startling statistics at their recent meeting.

In her talk on Canadian Literature in High Schools, she stated three percent of Canadian books published are from Canadian publishers; 61 percent of a group of students couldn't

Seniors bowl for team cup

For the first game to decide winners of the Team Cup, 67 members of the Senior Citizens' Bowling League bowled Friday at ABC Lanes.

High single scores for women were: Doris Neil 236, Ethel Cruikshank 230, Irene Brooker 223; for men: Jack Sheahan 233, Jim Farquhar 226, Harry Burns 219.

The season's bowling will end Friday next, to be resumed in September.

April 25 will be the final day to obtain tickets for the bowling banquet, which takes place May 6. Accordionist Pat Fagan will entertain at the dinner.

Big Brothers meeting

The fifth annual meeting of Big Brothers of York will be held at the Aurora Community Centre Auditorium, Aurora Heights Drive, Wednesday, April 23, at 7:30 pm.

The meeting will receive and consider the annual report, the financial statements and the report of the auditors. Directors will be elected, auditors appointed, and any other business as may come before the meeting will be transacted.

Entertainment has been planned and refreshments will be served.

Lions music festival

The 15th annual Newmarket Lions Club Music Festival opens April 25 and runs to May 2. The event will draw musicians from all over.

Competitions will be held at three locations in Newmarket: piano at the Lions amphitheatre, instrumental at Trinity United Church and bands at Huron Heights Secondary School.

The event will conclude with the festival of Stars which will feature the top winners from the competitions.

Garden centre meeting

The annual meeting of the Civic Garden Centre will be held in the Auditorium of the centre, 777 Lawrence Avenue East, Don Mills, Tuesday, April 29, at 8:15 pm.

At this time reports of board and centre activities will be made and a new board elected. Up to the minute news of centre's expansion plans will be given and the staff introduced.

Following the business portion, the audience will be "Meandering with Tommy", when T. W. Thompson, Metropolitan Toronto Parks Commissioner, will speak. The widely recognized South African film "The Third Day" will be shown. Refreshments will be served.

The library, bookshop and garden shop will be open prior to the meeting. Members of the centre and interested persons are invited to attend and meet the board and staff members.

Reading program offered

The Bathurst Heights Library, Bathurst Street, one block north of Lawrence, is offering an instructive six-week program called "Books for your Children", which will discuss what to choose for children's reading and how to choose it. The series, commencing Thursday, May 1 at 1:30 pm, includes book talks, selection pointers and how to encourage children to enjoy reading from pre-school age to adulthood.

There is no fee for this series, but pre-registration at the library is required. For more information call the Bathurst Heights Library at 783-4283.

Non-profit organizations planning programs of interest to readers in Southern York may submit items for this column to Social Editor Margaret Lade, "The Liberal", 10101 Yonge Street, Richmond Hill, 884-8177 or 881-3401. Deadline is noon on Friday.

The first recorded sausage makers were the Romans. They preserved the smaller parts and scraps of the pig for winter eating.

Probably the word sausage comes from a Late Latin word, salsicia, meaning something prepared by salting.

Today, however, France is the country for fresh sausage. In every small town you'll find at least one charcuterie, a shop which sells the cooked meat of the pig.

The mainstay of the charcutier will be transmutations of the pig, mostly sausages but he will also sell companion foods like olives, breads and maybe a few salads, as well as uncooked pork.

Wish you had a charcutier in your neighborhood? No need to because it's the easiest thing in the world to make your own sausage especially if you have an electric mixer or grinder with a sausage-making attachment.

Ideally, you'll need casings for your sausage. These are prepared from sheep and beef intestines and can be obtained from any butcher who makes his own sausage.

Soak the skins overnight before using.

Next day push one end over tap, run cold water through then slip casing onto your sausage making attachment.

Now you are ready to stuff sausage.

If you haven't a stuffer, with care, skins can be stuffed using a pastry bag with a plain metal attachment ... squeeze mixture into casings.

Don't hold back if you don't fancy stuffing the casings.

You'll miss a true gustatorial delight if you don't try making your own sausage meat.

Make it up and after it matures a day or two form it into small patties or balls.

They are wonderful in cassoulets, soups, stews and as companions for eggs or potatoes.

Stack: using two layers of plastic wrap between patties.

They'll keep in the refrigerator five to six days or in the freezer, wrapped well, up to two months.

Simply remove number of patties required, re-wrap the remainder and return to the freezer.

For a large sausage, put all of the sausage mixture in a large intestine and tie ends.

Or, form it into a roll, wrap it in thin strips of salt pork or slices of bacon, then wrap completely with all-purpose cloth; tie cloth in place.

Let it mature two days in the refrigerator then use it within six days or keep in the freezer up to two months.

To cook — simmer 1-2 hours. It will be ready-to-serve, hot or cold.

Country style sausage
2 lbs. lean fresh pork shoulder
1/2 lb. hard back fat
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sage
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/2 teaspoon cloves

1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
Freshly ground black pepper

Put the lean and fat pork through the meat grinder once or twice according to the texture desired. Sprinkle seasonings over meat and mix well.

Wrap in a plastic wrap and store in refrigerator one to two days for all seasonings to mingle.

Make into sausages or small patties or shape into rolls that resemble refrigerator cookie dough. (Easy to slice off circles the thickness you like.)

Wrap; store in the refrigerator and use within six days or store in the freezer up to two months.

If you want to vary seasonings you could use savory, tarragon, garlic, chives, coriander, marjoram, crushed juniper berries, pimento.

Anything, in fact, that appeals to you.

To taste test your special mixture fry up a small sample, just a teaspoon or two in your smallest frypan.

Quick Scotch eggs
Make flat cakes of sausage meat, just a little larger in diameter than an egg. Dredge with flour then fry gently in butter. Drain well and cool.

Hard cook a few eggs. Lay a slice of hard cooked egg on each cake of sausage meat. Serve on a bed of lettuce garnished with mayonnaise and capers or sweet pickle relish. Makes an attractive hors d'oeuvre.
