Local MP and Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson (right) shares a moment with Senator Keith Davey

Friday as the York North Liberals held their annual gathering here in Southern York Region.

York North Liberals 'roast' Danson

The beef was not the only thing roasted at a reception-dinner held Friday by York North Liberals at Thornhill Community Centre, Bayview at John Street.

Federal Minister of Urban Affairs Barney Danson was also 'roasted' during the evening under the leadership of Senator Keith Davey as master of ceremonies.

Joining in the good-natured ribbing of the popular local riding representative at Ottawa were Jim Service, former mayor of North York; Joe Potts, a perennial candidate for public office; Ken Rottenburg, president of Y&R; Judge Dorothy Petrie of the citizen court; and Ken Danson, the minister's lawyer son.

The York North Liberal Association elected Patrick Ryan of Willowdale as its new president.

Other members of the executive will be: Ian

Henderson of Willowdale as executive vice-president, Mal Wardman of Markham as treasurer and Marie Letcher of Thornhill as secretary.

Nineteen vice-presidents were named for the riding, including the following from this area: Mary Neal, Marg Gerrow and Roy Koehler of Unionville; Brian Bailey, Alex MacRae, Norman Bergstein, Dennis Ashworth, Roy McMurchy and Don Galinsky of Thornhill and Con O'Donovan and Peter Garon of Richmond Hill.

Revised plan for property on Yonge

A revised plan for a combined commercial-residential development on the former Langstaff property on Yonge Street was presented to Richmond Hill Council's Planning Committee April 9 by Captain Development Ltd.

Architect Leo Ventiarutti presented the revision. He reminded planning committee that a site plan agreement had already been prepared for 63,000 square foot commercial development on the site with approval in principal given to a future 72,000 square foot eight-storey residential building.

The revised plan call for a ground floor commercial space of 25,000 square feet which will be set back on a level with the building to the north and will be topped by a five-storey residential building of 49,000 square feet with a further setback complying with council's policy of a height limit of 60 feet in that area.

The first floor of the residential building will have access to walkout patios on a portion of the roof of the commercial area; the other suites will have balconies.

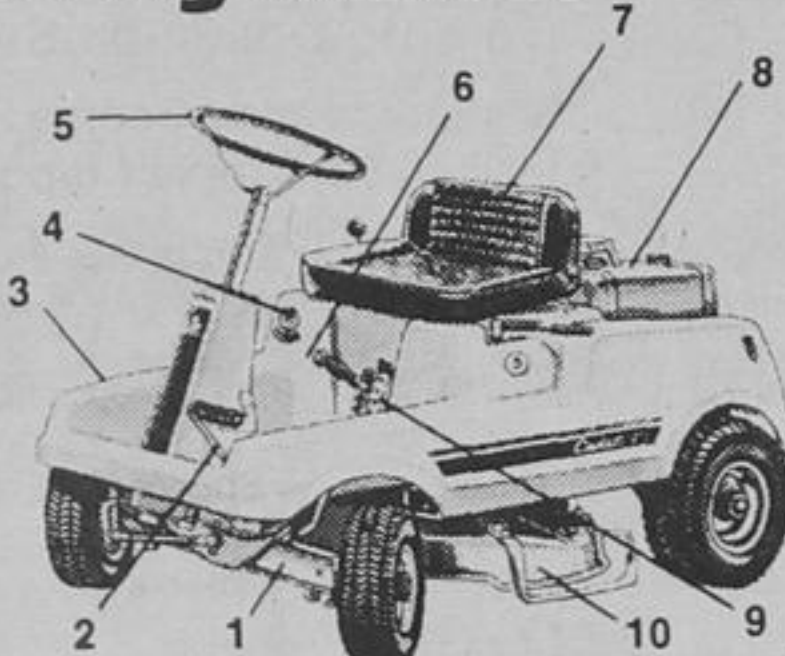

The patios will be considered part of the 45 percent landscaped open space requirement of the site. The required landscaping would be 19,000 square feet and with the patios the proposal will provide 21,000 square feet. Indoor recreation facilities will also be provided.

Most parking will be underground.

The committee instructed planning staff to enter into a revised site plan agreement with the applicant.

Planning Director HESSIE Rimon pointed out that a rezoning application must be made also to accommodate the general commercial-residential development. The zoning at present is only general commercial.
