

Hill curling season is off and sweeping

By Ron Taylor
Like most curling clubs, we too suffered a loss in membership this year, but recovered by means of a very successful membership campaign headed by Paul Welsh.

The opening spiel Oct. 17 was over-subscribed, but thanks to some of our veterans, room was made for the overflow.

Clark Bullock and his rink of Colleen Alexson, Alex Alexson and Marianne O'Connell, won the honor of becoming the first pot hunter of the year on the first draw.

Lloyd Schenoff and his rink of Helen Schenoff, John Besley and Cathy Cushing won the second draw.

The following day, the Sinners, Business Girls, Juniors and the Legion began their activities and by the end of the week all schedules were in operation.

Guest Day
On Nov. 1 a Guest Day was held and once again a full house was accommodated. Curlers on the late draw were offered a full breakfast for 99 cents and Chef Bill Baillie, after a few minor failures, turned out over 30 delicious servings.

Len Lee and his committee did a great job of planning this annual event and even though Len somehow lost the score cards, he was able to announce that Bill Oliver and his rink of his wife Brigitte and his guests of Lynn and Dave Hampton from Leaside were the overall winners for the day.

Men's Open
A local men's clothing merchant and former curling club member, Bob Craigie, has agreed to sponsor a Men's Open Spiel Nov. 15.

Thanks to the hard work of Bill Oliver and his committee, this spiel is filled and promises to provide some keen competition.

Club members could say thanks to Bob by dropping into his store on the west side of Yonge Street, just north of Centre Street.

Mmm, Good
Tab MacDonald and his

Mixed Curling committee are cooking and serving a spaghetti dinner Nov. 22 for the low price of $1.49. Serving begins at 7:30 p.m. and continues until 10:30 p.m.

If you have other plans for later that evening, why not plan to eat at the club. Tickets are available from Tab.

Not to be outdone, your Board of Directors are offering a steak dinner to the first 48 curlers who sign up for a six end game at 4:30 Nov. 30. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. after "Happy Hour" for a cost of $5 per person.

All cooking and sewing will be done by the directors. Interested members are asked to sign their names on the poster at the club.

Roaring Start
Compared to previous years, this season is off to a roaring beginning and by strong committees and continued support by the membership this tempo should continue throughout the season.

Schedule standings and individual games will be reported next week, but in the meantime, three questions remain unanswered.

How did a man's cardigan end up in the Ladies Lounge? Who was the grey haired gentleman seen sneaking out early during the Guest Day? Whose vice skip pulled him out of trouble in the Mixed League and then took all the credit for himself? It's the principal of the thing!

Markham Seniors in final

Markham came right back on a punt single by Steve Kirkland from the Aurora 30 and added another one pointer in the second quarter from the 35 yard line.

Big march
The big move came in the third when Markham marched 65 yards downfield and quarterback Mark Neale sneaked it over from the two yard line. The convert failed.

Then it was Kirkland rounding out a fine two-way day in the fourth quarter

King Seniors ousted by Markham better field position for an offensive drive that never materialized.

The other safety touch came in the first quarter and opened the scoring as the Markham defence broke through on a King punt to down the kicker behind the goal line.

That margin lasted until the second quarter when King's Don Ham intercepted a screen pass on Markham's 20 by Peter Evans and raced across for a six pointer.

King leads
The two-point conversion on a pass from Brian Hamilton to Bryce Clark gave King an 8-2 lead which lasted until the end of the second half.

"We gave up two more safety touches in the third quarter," said Searjeantson, "in an effort to move the ball further up the field but it was no go."

four or more.

Hope that doesn't sound too cynical but that's been my experience. Then I've been very wrong very many times. On the surface, it's working now and maybe there's a reason.

If you get the right people with the right attitude, why, that's the best possible way of succeeding. Ken seems to think, on the whole, that this is the case.

New coaches
Most of the coaches are new this season and that's a good start in itself. Old ideas and old ways are hard to change.

I'm also impressed with the president of the minor hockey association in the person of Bob Reeves. I like his attitude of keeping everything "above board, on the surface."

It's been my experience that the best way to get people working together is to let them know what they're working for and to let them see it lying right out there.

Then, of course, there's Shirley Logan and the women's auxiliary, who are doing their part in their first year of existence. All a vital part in any organization.

Carry on
To conclude:
From the outside, it looks okay on the inside. There are probably a few detractors, maybe more, but I would imagine you would even find those types in heaven. So to speak.

As for me? I'll try anything once. Maybe even twice if I'm still alive. More power to you people. Carry on.

Finale notes
Speaking of violence in hockey, how about violence in curling?

There's a chap who curls for the Legion Fuddle Duddles (his name shall be omitted in deference to his relatives) who would be a lot safer in the NHL than on the ice at the Richmond Hill Curling Club.

He debuted into the world of curling last season and immediately fell and broke his arm. Just recently he went out, slipped again, and fell nose-first right on the rock. Broken nose.

Who said there is violence in hockey? Amen.

M-m-m
Finally, action in the Richmond Hill Town Hockey League Monday night saw the Light Blues tie the Green 2-2. Scoring for the Greens were Wes Berseth and Steve Wilson. For the Blues, Leone Lavine and Wayne Kirkham. Goalie Steve Bucsalamaes (that's what it do say, here) was knocked cold for the Greens but came back to play outstanding hockey.

Firefighters fade, lose by 9-1

The long car ride to Windsor told its tale in the third period of last week's game between that team and the Richmond Hill-Vaughan Firefighters.

The local firefighters faded and ended up on the Windsor pumped six unanswered goals past Blair Robson in the last nine minutes of the game.

The Richmond Hill-Vaughan Firefighters gave it a great effort and with a little bit of luck could have made the score a lot closer.

Richmond Hill hit the goal posts six times during the game but the only counter came off the stick of Terry Haviland with assists to Don Peers and Rob Nixon.

Maybe it was an indication of things to come when the drivers of the Richmond Hill-Vaughan cars each got a ticket for speeding on the way to the game.
