WHAT KIND OF STREET DO YOU WANT TO LIVE ON?

Do you like cul-de-sacs, courts and crescents? They are generally free of traffic and quieter than straight streets with intersections, though often not as accessible to business areas. Some home owners prefer sidewalks while others prefer none.

How about trees? Mature trees add a parklike atmosphere to a street and cool it in summer from the hot sun.

Next to deciding on the general neighborhood, knowing the specific type of street you prefer can be a major help in finding the kind of home that will give you the most future satisfaction.

If your street is not completely built up you should consider what the future holds. A currently peaceful garden, for instance, could eventually be next to a public playground or road allowance. Will zoning allow future commercial establishments that could change the character of the street?

An experienced Realtor is an expert on streets and neighborhoods of the community or town where he works. Since the research to answer your question is already a part of his daily work, it makes sense to start by discussing your needs with him.
