Business firm toured

Impressive array of electronic and communications equipment was on view at Texas Instruments open house at its two Richmond Hill locations recently. Company employees, family and other guests — including Hill Mayor David Schiller and wife Marilyn (above) — toured both plants and were impressed with the variety of products being manufactured locally. Employee Velda Brooshooft is seen performing a welding operation on relay devices. Among other equipment, the international firm makes computer terminals, processors, calculators and elaborate communications systems.

Parents demanding school renovations

WHITCHURCH - STOUFFVILLE — A decision by York County board of education to put off several school projects until all its members go over the list, has prompted quick action from parents of children attending Summitview Public School.

The parents kept their children out of school Thursday and Friday as a way of protesting board inaction in upgrading fire protection standards at the school.

In the meantime, they also picketed the premises.

Janet Arends, spokesman for the group, said the parents hope to force the board to complete renovations to the school as recommended by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office four years ago.

She said the board failed to begin work on the $37,000 worth of required renovations, even though approving construction of a general purpose room at Orchard Park Public School at the other end of town.

Two weeks ago, the board put over both the Summitview and Orchard Park projects, although they were recommended by its standing committee on planning and building in a special report.

The board, however, felt that additional study of the report by all trustees was necessary before the recommendations could be fully considered.

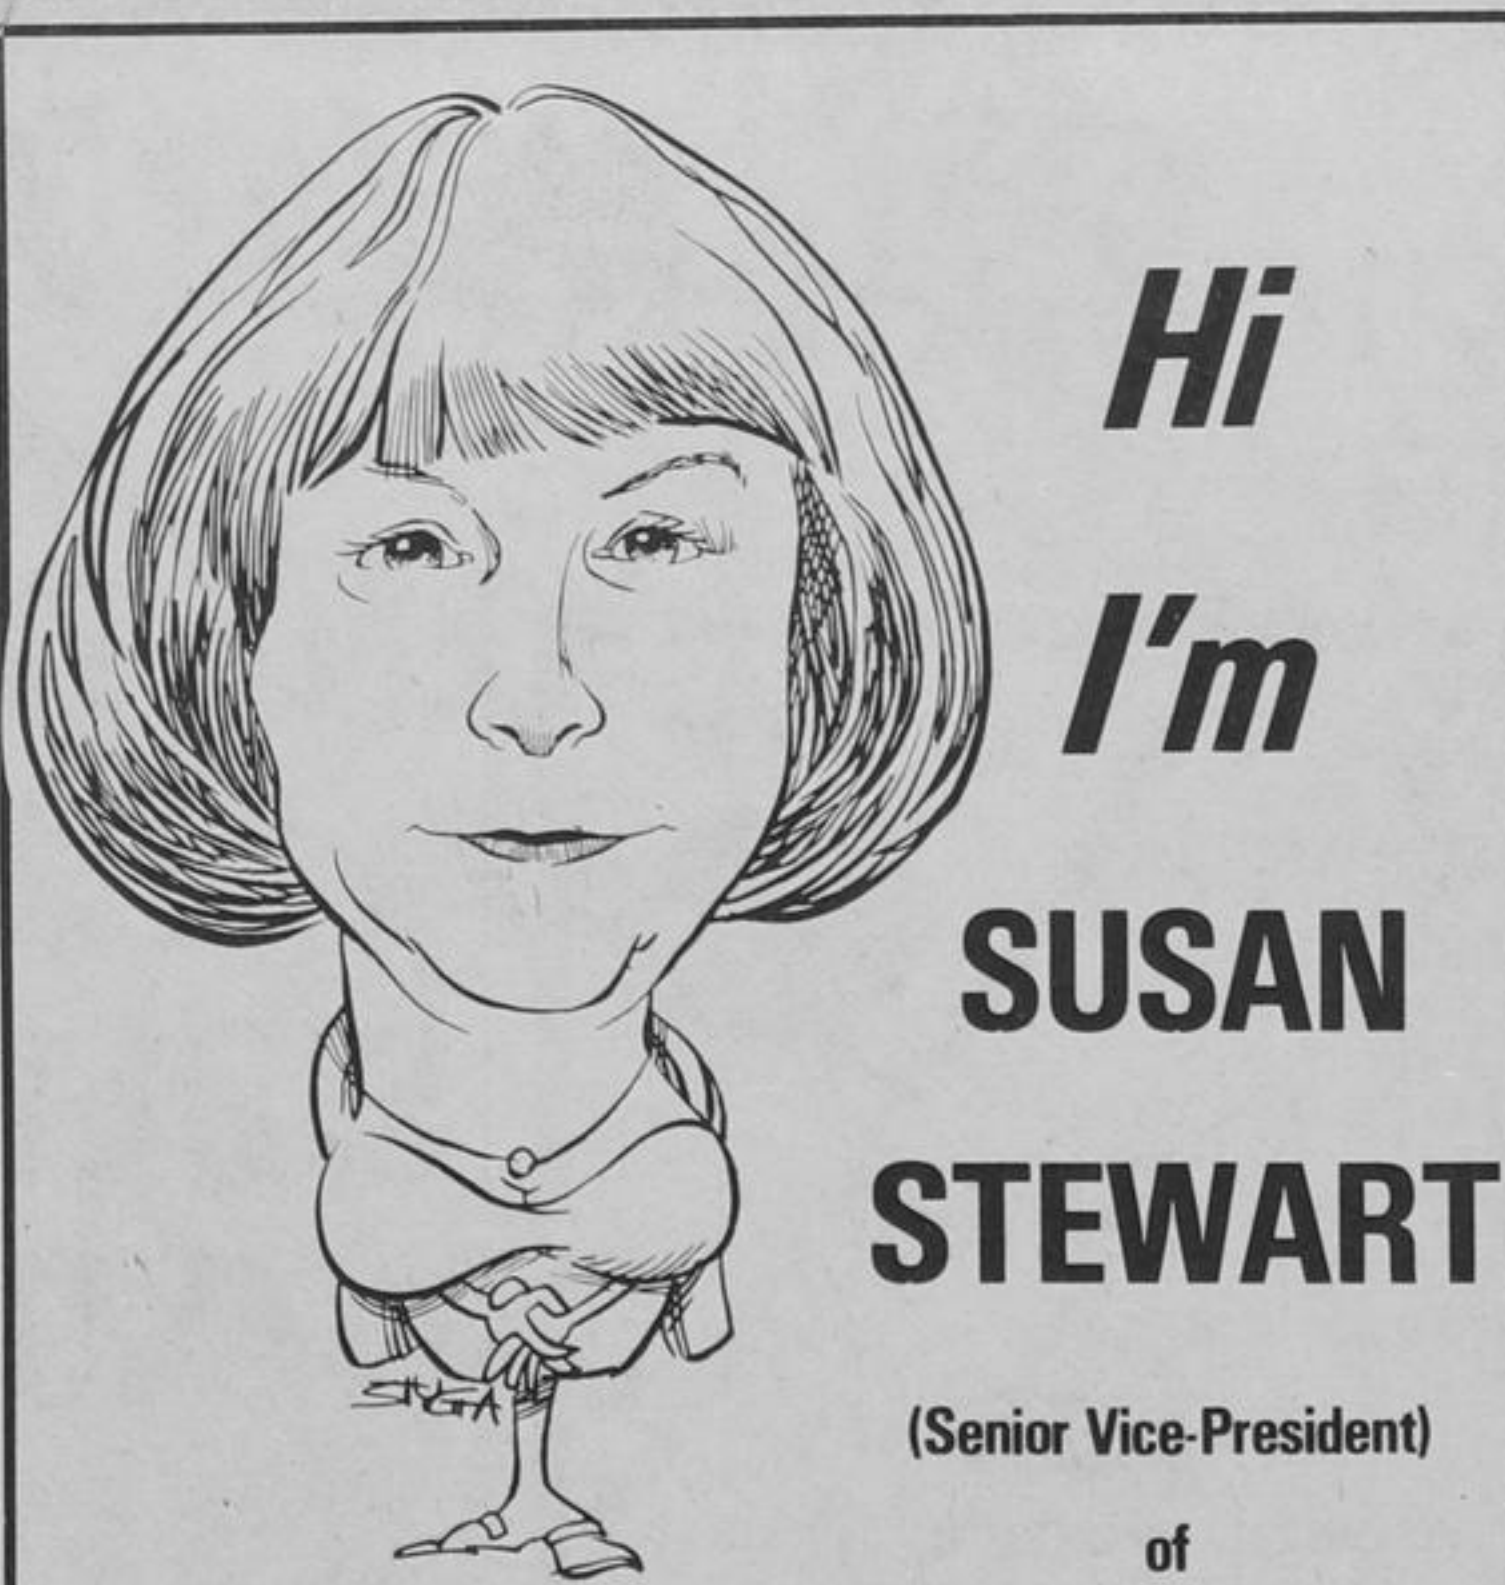

School board chairman Doug Allen blamed financial cutbacks by the ministry of education for stalling the projects.

Senior's club gets grant

THORNHILL — A New Horizons grant of $2,375 has been awarded to the Thornhill and district senior citizen's club, York North MP Barney Danson announced last week.

The grant will assist the group in moving to new quarters and in acquiring furniture.

It will also help finance expansion of club activities, including the formation of a choir.
