CUPE protesting reductions in staff

AURORA — service is hard to countenance, Nick Vollebregt, president of Canadian union of public employees, Local 1734 (CUPE) told a meeting of York county board of education. Vollebregt appeared before the board to talk about recent staff reductions made by the board. He said that, when a service was reduced and resulted in staff reductions, while CUPE members didn't like it, they could understand it. "However, it is a different matter when trustees decide to reduce staff without in fact reducing the service to be provided." He said one of the major examples was in the elimination of the position of technician in the plant and sites department. The position was created two years ago to assist the purchasing officer in the procurement of maintenance related repair and service contracts, he said. Vollebregt said very few jobs were being tendered then and one of the reasons for not being able to call official bids, was that facts and specifications were needed. The plants and sites department didn't have the time or manpower. With the hiring of the technician the situation improved, even if not to the point they would have liked it to, Vollebregt said. However, "it definitely is a step in the right direction." This year, in addition to grasscutting, painting, snowplowing, boiler service, fire extinguisher and glass repair service, they would be able to call public tenders on mechanical and pneumatic controls, air conditioning, plumbing, roofing, electrical and paving contracts. He said a board official had informed him the cut was due to a reduced maintenance budget, which struck him as wrong. In reducing an organization's maintenance budget, "make extra sure that the money you have is spent wisely," Vollebregt said. "You don't reduce experienced and qualified staff and you certainly don't do it by reducing competitive bids."

Testing a theory...

The last swimmers had left the beach not more than a half hour before on this hot August night. "Now is the time", I told myself, "to see if this theory works out". The black Jitter Bug sailed into the night and hit the water with a noisy splash. I counted 15 seconds and pulled just enough on the line to move it slightly. I rested the lure about 10 seconds longer before starting a slow retrieve. The familiar PLUP...PLUP...PLUP...had just started when he hit!

That Largemouth Bass hit my lure with such fury that I swore someone fell into the lake. On a quiet night, even a two pounder can sound like a monster. In 20 minutes I had had my limit so I considered my theory proven.

Just picture a beach on a lake during the hot summer months...swimmers all about until the evening hours. The last one leaves the area about ten o'clock. By that time the water is disturbed and all types of dirt is floating about. The minnows move in to feed on the floating debris and the Bass are close by to feed on the minnows.

Largemouth Bass, Pike, Musky, and a host of smaller fish fall for a well presented top-water lure during the hot summer nights. Tie your lure directly to the line, as a swivel or steel leader will cut down on the action of your lure. In the late evening or during the night, find a shallow bay with plenty of water lilies or the beach areas mentioned previously. If you fish from shore, approach as you would sneak upon an unsuspecting animal. If fishing from a boat, keep well out from shore and cast toward the water's edge.

Cast your lure out to a likely looking spot and then — do nothing. The hungry old Bass is waiting for his dinner, and as your lure hits the water, he gets the shock of his life. He takes off as fast as he can, but a few feet away, he stops, satisfied that no danger is near.

While you count slowly to thirty, without moving the lure, he gets very curious and swims cautiously back to the lure. However, as there is no movement, he loses interest and eyes the lure suspiciously.

Your 30 seconds are up and you twitch the lure, very slightly, enough to make a few rings on the water, but not enough to move it from its spot. Now the old mossback is all excited. "It moves, but it doesn't look like a mouse or frog, so let's be ready to take a swipe at it if it moves again".

About 20 seconds later you are ready to give up, twitch your lure lightly and start retrieving the line. There is no way that lure will get away from that Bass. He takes a dive, then a splash that sounds like a beaver, and the fight is on. What a fight!

It's a biggie You have no idea what hit your lure, nor do you know where it has gone with your bait. Everything is in the fish's favour. He has all those underwater obstacles to wind your line around. You are making all kinds of mistakes in your excitement, probably end up with about 10 feet of line wrapped around your ears, and if you don't fall into the water first you may end up with a bass, just perfect for mounting or a rock-bass weighing a mere ten ounces.

Minnows CAMERON, John Bruce — In loving memory of our dear son, John Bruce, who passed away July 8, 1972. "Every day in some small way, Memories of you come our way, Tho' absent, you are ever near, Still missed, loved, always dear." Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers. c1w1

ATTENTION: WELL, RIVER AND LAKE WATER USERS... YOUR DRINKING WATER MAY BE UNSAFE.

In Ontario we have taken pure, clean water for granted all our lives. So it's a real shock to realize that we just can't trust untreated drinking water anymore.

With all our lovely lakes and bright, sparkling rivers and deep, cool wells we have to be concerned about invisible little disease-causing bacteria that could be in any untreated water in Ontario.

How can you protect yourself and your family? Can you be sure your drinking water is 100% safe? Yes — with a Super Sterasyl water purifier.

THE SUPER STERASYL WATER PURIFIER GIVES CLEAN, PURE, SAFE DRINKING WATER FOR UNDER $70.

• Silver-impregnated ceramic cartridge traps and kills bacteria and filters other microscopic particles.
• Activated carbon removes most bad tastes and odours.
• Simple do-it-yourself installation — no pipe-cutting or soldering.

Eighty-seven years of experience is at your service to help you get the most for your money.
