

Thanks giving within limits

Rev. Bernard Barrett
..... St. Mary's Anglican Church

By Rev. Bernard Barrett
RICHMOND HILL — As we in Canada celebrate Thanksgiving Day a whole variety of subjects can come to our attention.

The most obvious of these is that in spite of inflation, controls and other things which some of us get upset about we are amongst the best-off people in the world.

As such we have much to be thankful for and we need to put our complaints in some kind of realistic perspective.

Labor protest
Related to this, as we celebrate Thanksgiving we come close to labour's day of protest on Oct. 14. We also hear many expressions of protest by business leaders about controls.

Whatever our feeling about controls, we need to keep very much before us that those who protest them often are looking to their own wants and not considering the needs of the powerless who have little chance to make their voices heard.

3 power groups
Business, labour and government are three very significant power groupings in our country. It is very important that in using the power they have, they do not forget those whose interests are not necessarily looked after by that power.

As we reflect on our own situation in Canada we have a deep moral responsibility to consider the needs of the rest of the world.

As a nation we still benefit in many ways by the impoverishment of others.

Everyone's concern
This is not just the concern of those with major responsibility in our country but is in the hands of each and every one of us.

Lastly as we celebrate Thanksgiving let us develop a responsible kind of thanksgiving which will lead us to live within the necessary limits of our world so that we do not rape the world for the benefit of our apparently unlimited desire to develop as consumers.

New drug discovered for seasonal asthma

RICHMOND HILL — Local lung associations — the Christmas Seal people — are observing Asthma Week Oct. 3 to 9.

This summer many kids went off to camp — including kids with asthma. Your lung association says that segregating children with asthma is a mistake.

When doctors can pinpoint the offending substances, asthmatic patients may receive allergy shots to make them less sensitive to the substances.

Now there is also a new drug called cromolyn sodium which can help prevent attacks of seasonal asthma, especially attacks caused by pollen in the air.

About 500,000 Canadians have asthma and nearly half are children under the age of 16.

Children with asthma, except for a few severe cases, should be included in regular group activities at camps, school physical education programs, and all kinds of recreational programs.

The York-Toronto Lung Association offers free community asthma programs to help asthma sufferers lead a normal life. The programs are made possible through contributions to Christmas Seals.

Sudden attacks of asthma can be a scary business for anyone, especially children. But asthma may also involve mild, more or less continuous breathing difficulty too.

Mild or severe, asthma attacks — when they occur in the first three and a half decades of life — are usually triggered by a variety of factors, — substances in the air or environment, acute respiratory infections and emotional disturbances. Heredity seems to play a part too.

To find out more about asthma and what to do about it contact the York-Toronto Lung Association at 226-1454. It's a Matter of Life and Breath!
