

'Walk' nets $4,000

RICHMOND HILL — The windy, cold weather didn't stop 250 enthusiastic area school children and a few adult friends from participating in the Canadian Progress Club and United Way walk-a-thon last Sunday.

The march covered 20 kilometres through Richmond Hill and Vaughan. Organizers estimated that about $4,000 may be realized from the event but they were disappointed since a greater response had been intended.

"Everyone who participated, from organizers to sponsors to the walkers, and to parents who ferried out hot drinks and sandwiches to their children, are to be applauded and congratulated," said Bob Higgs, executive director of the United Way of York Region.

"Not many of us will forget the wind in our faces on the King-Vaughan Town Line, or the contentment of sitting quietly at the end munching on a bag of French fries, our rewards well-earned."

The local chapter of the Canadian Progress Club deserves a "special vote of thanks and their work should be recognized by the community to whose service they are committed," Higgs said.

"And I personally would like to thank Karen, Randy, Robbie, Monica and Amanda of Walter Scott School, and Karen from Thornhill for walking with me — the United Way."

Campaign kick-off

Here's Mayor David Schiller of Richmond Hill kicking off the United Way campaign in York Region, a mammoth fund-raising venture that can bring financial security to many area social service agencies. On Sunday, the United Way and Canadian Progress Club joined to sponsor a 20-kilometre walkathon which raised some $4,000.
