THORNHILL — Gordon Mauder, principal of German Mills Public School, has returned from a conference on exceptional children which may find their way into the school. "Most schools try to do an awful lot for the child at the other end of the stream," said Mauder in an interview. The conference held in London Ontario earlier this month by the Council for Exceptional Children attracted teachers and administrators from many parts of Canada and the United States. One workshop Mauder attended offered practical solutions for reaching the "turned-off" child. He and librarian Audrey Fullerton are now planning to take the time to identify students in grades 4 to 6 who are bright and need more challenges. Doing traffic counts and suggesting solutions to problems at a local intersection is one example of what the children might do. Commissioner Olive Verrico, newly appointed York South Division, Girl Guides of Canada, is looking for a commissioner for the Bayview District. The boundaries are between Steeles and Highway 7, with Bayview to the west and Woodbine to the east. Mrs. Verrico is also looking for someone who would be in charge of Public Relations for the Guides. Those interested should contact Mrs. Verrico at 884-3276.

THORNHILL — Outings, outings and more outings have been the order of the day at Henderson Avenue Public School. Recently, the Kindergarten class visited a Thornhill veterinary clinic. Mrs. Goldberg's grade five students visited the Science Centre, and the students in Mrs. Duckman's class visited the CN Tower, having already built their own replica in the classroom. Mrs. Semeniy's class went to the Royal Alex to see a marionette show of Aladdin's Lamp and plans are afoot for grades three and four students to attend the Royal Winter Fair.

Recently, much enthusiasm was engendered at the school when the children were asked to submit ideas for a new mascot. From the many entries, Anna Di Pietrantonio's grade five submission was chosen. Anna suggested an owl, and her prize-winning concept will be made up into a large stuffed toy by Madeline Hughes who helps in the school library.
