

...And Schiller scores again

With a Molson Ex as his victory drink, Mayor Dave Schiller is pleased to point out poll after poll where he outdistanced opponent Gordon Rowe in Monday's election. Schiller and friends gathered for celebrations after it was all over, and the final results showed the mayor with a comfortable 6051-4281 margin.

Stand by your man

Dave Schiller and wife Marilyn find a rare moment to say hi, or something like that, amid the happy pandemonium at the mayor's victory party at the Masonic lodge Monday night. A large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to congratulate their candidate.

Finally time to relax

Two of Richmond Hill's re-elected councillors, John Birchall (centre) and Marylo Graham, have a chat with York Region United Way director Bob Higgs at Cable 10 television studios

Monday. All candidates were invited to drop by the studios and most of them did congregate there at one time or another.

Adams' solemn scorers

Waiting anxiously in his Thornhill home, Markham mayoralty candidate Bob Adams looks on as part of his campaign staff ponder the vote returns in early Monday evening. Adams was close all night but couldn't quite overtake incumbent Tony Roman.

Big Jim, Little Jim

There are two Jim Camerons here — dad and son — and they both appear pleased with dad's re-election to a council seat in Vaughan Monday night. Cameron led the polls in the previous election, but finished fourth among five winners this time in a contentious, topsy-turvy election.

Tony wins close one

Tony Roman is back in for another term as Markham mayor — but this time he had a real fight on his hands from Regional Councillor Bob Adams. Roman here is shown with Hazel and Bud Bonner on election night. Bonner was returned from Ward 4 by acclamation.
