Kravitz back

By Jim Irving

AURORA - Duddy Kravitz, who has been in and out of Woodbridge High School for the past few months, is now back in.

For good, this time. Kravitz is the hero of Mordecai Richler's book, "The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz," which, along with J.D. Salinger's "The Catcher in the Rye," had to go through several sessions with York County board of education before achieving respectability and being admitted to the high school curriculum.

The books were first approved in 1970. Following some complaints from both parents and students last October, the status of the books was reconsidered.

They were finally restored by a vote of 12 to 3, with one abstention.
