

The Liberal honored

Best provincial weekly newspaper, best editorial page and best newspaper design awards, all in the 10,001 to 16,000 circulation class, were presented Friday night to The Liberal's Editor Harold Blaine (left) by Gerry Barker of Bradford, president of the Ontario Weekly Newspaper Association. This was during the awards banquet at the OWNA annual convention in the Hotel Toronto. Close to 600 provincial and national newspaper people, wives and children, attended.

Town pool law remains same

THORNHILL — Stan Daurio went down to defeat 8-1 Thursday in his attempt to loosen up the town swimming pool bylaw.

Councillor Daurio says the present bylaw is so

RICHMOND HILL — John Van Kampen, publisher of The Liberal, will be interviewed on the program, "Doing Business in York Region", on Channel 10, Cable TV, March 14.

The program will be shown at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m.

Centred around businessmen in the area, the program concentrates on their personalities, businesses and problems of economy in the region. The series is produced by local lawyer Jay Chauhan of Channel 10.

stringent that many people don't bother with building permits just to avoid the requirement for a separate, locked gate. Unlike most municipalities, Markham's bylaw does not allow a direct entrance from a patio or back door. Pools must be built away from the house with a separate fence completely surrounding them and a locked gate. Councillor Tom Gove said he installed a pool last year. At the time he objected to the town's provision for a separate entrance for the pool.

But he complied with the bylaw "and I am delighted that I did." Councillor Alma Walker said there were two deaths in Markham swimming pools before the bylaw was put in.

She vehemently opposed any change that would make it easier for a child to fall into the pool. "An ounce of prevention is a pound of cure," she said.

Outside the meeting, Daurio said his fellow councillors did not know what they did. Out of 3,000 pools in Markham, he estimated only about 500 were built in compliance with the bylaw.

The rest of the owners are building their pools without necessarily complying with any of the safety features in the bylaw.
