

Exhibition opens tonight

Thornhill artist, Pauline Holancin Kulha, seems to be trying to decide whether her painting is ready for her exhibition, which opens with a preview tonight (Apr. 6) at York Fine Art Gallery, Snowball Village Boutiques, from 8 to 10 p.m. Anyway, it's still going on as planned, and will be open to the public the following evening, through Apr. 17. A landscape artist, she paints both in oil and watercolor. The gallery is located 2½ miles west of Aurora on Wellington Street.

Plenty on tap here

RICHMOND HILL — There's plenty on tap these nights in the way of entertainment for people in Richmond Hill and area.

Battling in her basement apartment every night this week at the Curtian Club against several unseen enemies, is Iris Stringer, who plays the harried blind woman in the production "Wait Until Dark."

A psychological thriller by Frederick Knott, the play tells the story of three hoodlums who attempt to wrest away a valuable "toy" from the terrified occupant.

The play winds up Saturday night.

Free concert

On Good Friday, York Philharmonic Choir will present the second of two free concerts this week, when it performs Rossini's "At the Foot of the Cross," at Richmond Hill United Church at 8 o'clock.

Edward Luka, accompanied by Derrick Lewis of Kleinburg on the organ, will conduct.

Last Sunday (Apr. 3) the choir presented the same concert at St.

Joseph's Morrow Park Convent in Willowdale. Choir soloists will be Brenda Luka, soprano; Joanne Leatch, alto; Roger Jones, tenor; and Geoffrey Rison, bass.

On Apr. 13, Richmond Hill High School will open its four-day run of two one-act plays at the school.

They are "Fool's Errand," a modern verse play, based on the Canterbury Tales, and "The Rose and the Crown" by J.B. Priestley.

Death is their common theme.

Laurie Hutchinson, who plays death in one of the plays, is also featured in the other one. The plays carry a total cast of 10.

Entertainment

Sight incidental to CNIB performers

RICHMOND HILL — When Al Zavitz of Essex Dr. in Richmond Hill, and other members of the Glenvale Drama Club, present their season opener, "Yes My Darling Daughter," Apr. 21-23, they'll have more than just their acting ability in common.

The members, with the exception of one, are all blind.

Yet that won't deter them from moving through their production at the CNIB Auditorium, 1929 Bayview Ave., with all the appearance of any other experienced amateur group.

Locations, cues and stage movements are solidly memorized and one has all the feeling that one is watching actors and actresses with full sight.

Uses cane

The only fully sighted player in the CNIB production — Mr. Zavitz is partially sighted and makes his way through Richmond Hill streets with the aid of a white cane — is Marty Koven of Toronto.

Green-eyed?

TORONTO — Dr. Robert Blood, an Ann Arbor marriage counsellor, will speak at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, 252 Bloor Street West, Saturday April 23 at 8 p.m.

The lecture, titled "Extra Marital Jealousy: Can the Green-Eyed Monster be Tamed?", is part of "Update: the family '77"—the theme of the 5th annual conference on the family sponsored by York University's centre for continuing education.

Dr. Blood will conduct an in-depth professional workshop on extra marital jealousy Sunday, April 25. call 667-2525.

Directing the play are Joan Fullerton and Lucy

Lunansky of Toronto Teachers' College. Starting time is 8 p.m. For tickets, which are $1.50, call 884-0738.
