

Residents' head critical of zone study

A study group, appointed by York County board of education to look into school zoning problems in the area, has been criticized by Stewart Roberts, president of Hillcrest Residents' Association, in a letter to members of the group. Roberts, who is also a representative of Ward 6, said his group had "reached the point where we find ourselves questioning not only your

'method of doing business,' but your business establishment as well." He said they wondered why the study had been extended to include the entire Richmond Hill area. Originally, four schools in the Richvale area, plus Beverley Acres, Crosby Heights, Jefferson and Walter Scott public schools, were to be covered. He said they weren't opposed to a town-wide study; the trouble was that nobody knew the study was being conducted. "Can you please tell us who would be required to present a brief to your committee from an area that has never been informed that such a committee even exists?" Stewart wrote. Also, was any effort being made to contact areas where there wasn't any organized community or parents' association? The letter also questioned the selection of people outside the board to the study group. Stewart said none of those named was to hold an executive position in any parents' group or local association. However, it had since been learned that one member, Mrs. Susan Stoner of Richmond Hill, held "at least one executive position on a community level, and also acted as a representative of her school area to the school board meetings when Crosby Heights' accommodation problems were being reviewed." Richmond Hill Trustee, Eric Baker, who selected Mrs. Stoner, told The Liberal that when he called her to see if she would be interested in being a member of the study group, he asked her if she was a member of any association. She informed him she was with Ward 3 Ratepayers'. However, Ward 3 hadn't taken any position on the schools, and we were concerned with people who were tied to one particular viewpoint," Baker said. The Hillcrest people represented "a single school situation," Baker said. "I was satisfied that she (Mrs. Stoner) was a good selection."

Stewart's group also objected to inclusion of the second appointee, E.C. Nokes of Richmond Hill, who they felt was too much from the same general area as Mrs. Stoner.

Almost $5,000 for youth work

Additional funding for two local projects under the new Young Canada Works Program was announced this week by the Hon. Barney Danson, MP York North. The amount of $1,088 has been made available to "summer programming for physically handicapped children" organized by Richmond Hill Town. The project of "York Regional and Municipal Publications, annotated bibliography", has been awarded a further $3,808.
