

Bayview Glen Church under construction

Steel framework of the Bayview Glen Church is up and work is progressing smoothly. Formerly the Avenue Road Church, building of new structure was decided when many of the congregation began moving north. Noted broadcaster Charles Templeton, at one time, preached in the Avenue Road Church. New church will hold about 1,000 people, fewer than Avenue Road location.

By DIANE MARSHALL
The Bayview Glen Church, at the corner of Bayview and Steeles Ave., should be completed by November, said assistant minister, Bruce Edwards.
About 300 people met every Sunday at the Avenue Road Church, one mile north of Bloor, until June, 1975, when it was decided to move to a location outside the city since the members had been gradually moving to the north.
Ironically enough, the Avenue Road Church, where Charles Templeton used to preach, was sold to the Hare Krishna for $400,000 through a real estate development firm said Mr. Edwards.
The church would have preferred that it not go to the religious sect.

Since then, the members of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Willowdale and nearby areas have been having their service at Zion Heights School on Leslie Street and holding weekly meetings during the week at various schools in the area.
"The new church will be a little smaller than the old one but the congregation has decreased from 1,500. The sanctuary will hold about 1,000 people and the parking facilities will be better", said Mr. Edwards.

The $1.5 million structure is located on a wooded area with a branch of the Don River running through it.

The church has made an agreement with Metro Conservation that the trees will be kept and the creek will be maintained, he said.
It is to be built in two phases and it is hoped that the project will be completed within five years.
A log cabin behind the construction is now used for an office but is expected to be used as a recreational centre if the carpenter ants don't get to it first, said Mr. Edwards.

The final building is designed for a grade school and it is quite possible a Christian day school will be established in the future, he said.

This operation answers queries from community

"We answer the community's questions." Such is the basis of Information Markham, a community information centre which serves the Markham, Unionville, Thornhill and Stouffville area.

Their office is located in the basement of the Markham Centennial Library; they are open Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
The number to call is 294-4300 or 297-3459.

Information Markham officially began operating in 1973 although volunteers had been collecting information since the fall of 1972.

The original purpose of the centre was to aid senior citizens in their queries concerning government benefits and in their dealings with government agencies.

The service soon realized, however, that they were filling another important need as an information and referral service for newcomers to the area.

The information centre collects and dispenses information which ranges over a broad spectrum of questions and answers. These include community events, recreation, community services, senior citizen services and events and clubs, professional services, family groups and clubs, child care information, health services, volunteer services and more.

All callers' inquiries remain confidential and Information Markham will find out who has the answer if they cannot find it.

The centre employs a full-time Coordinator and Secretary but the bulk of the work is done by volunteers.

The volunteers are well-trained, conscientious people and, of course, there is always a demand for more volunteers like them.

It is important that the data files at the information centre be kept as up-to-date as possible. While the volunteers and staff are constantly working to keep the information accurate they also need their callers' help.

Immediately a club's information changes or a new event is planned please give Information Markham a call to let them know.
