

St. Michael's students move inside school

Most students of St. Michael's Catholic School on Simonsen have moved into the school building in the last few days.

The exceptions are one or two classrooms which will be in the portables for another couple of weeks.

The school, which had been scheduled to open after Labour Day, was delayed because of the electricians' strike last summer.

Construction being done to Holy Name in King should be completed by Christmas but there is no word as to the completion of an addition to St. Joseph's in Markham.

MALL OPENS
Markham Place at the corner of Don Mills Road and Steeles, which was also delayed by the electricians' strike, opens today.

The Thornhill Block Parents will have an information book at the Craft Sale being sponsored by the Thornhill Kiwanis this Sunday, October 23, at the Farmer's Market on Yonge Street.

german mills

ON THE MOVE
The North-East Jewish Community Services invites the public to join them next Monday, October 24, 8 p.m. at the Hillcrest Public Library, 5801 Leslie Street.

Dr. Stephen Speisman,

Archivist for the Canadian Jewish Congress will be on hand to speak on "From King and Yonge to the North-East and Beyond", tracing the movement of the Toronto Jewish Community from downtown, up Bathurst Street, into North East Metropolitan Toronto and other surrounding areas. There is no admission and refreshments will be served.

HOME DAYCARE
York Regional Day

Care Services are still in the process of implementing a Private Home Day Care Program which is daily care given in an approved private residence to not more than five children from infancy to ten years of age.

This service will be handled by the Supervisor of Private Home Day Care.

They are looking for home care providers who are warm, relaxed and really like children and who can give reliable, understanding care.

The homes should be clean, warm, safe and well ventilated and have space for children to play both indoors and out.

For further information call Day Care Services at Richmond Hill, 883-1279 or write to Richvale Day Care Centre, 160 Avenue Road, Richmond Hill, Ontario, L4C 5L8.
