When Ken and Barbara Coulthard, formerly of 26 Canadiana Drive in Thornhill, decided to move and sell some of their household items, they went one better than a garage sale. Someone from their moving company told them about auctioneer Charlie Dunn, Dunn, of Oak Ridges, who is with Wilson Industrial Auctioneers has been in the business for the past 15 years and says he has done auction sales from Whitehorse in the Yukon to Newfoundland. For him no two days are alike.

People place planned

The Unionville Conservation and Development Society hopes to make the Unionville main street a "people place" more than once a year. Now the scene of the highly successful Unionville Festival one Saturday each spring, Kennedy Road needs more businesses where local people can shop, says Ken Ackles, chairman of the UCDS. "It is now mostly antique shops, not that there is anything wrong with antique shops, but we would like to have more stores where people can do their everyday shopping."

At the same time, the society hopes to enhance the nineteenth century flavor of the street. Their concept, and Ackles is careful to say that nothing has gone beyond the conceptual stage, is to have a parking lot on the valley land off the street.

Parking on Kennedy Road itself would be reduced to one side only, with benches and trees sprouting where there are now parking spots.

The concept was to be discussed by the new executive of UCDS when they met this week and will soon be presented to markham council. One big question is how much the ideas will cost to implement, says Ackles.

The plans would be developed in conjunction with the building of the Unionville bypass. The society was formed about eight years ago to oppose the widening of Kennedy Road and the bypass became the alternative for getting traffic past the heart of Unionville.
