Garden party arranged for Knights of Columbus

By MARY WATTS

The White Mission Fathers are known for their work in foreign missions. Their headquarters is in Thornhill on Colonsay Road.

The fathers played host to the Charles Vanier Council Knights of Columbus and their wives at a social evening July 7.

A buffet dinner, prepared by the ladies, was enjoyed in the gardens, and as the evening was perfect, there was celebration.

Five mission priests, on leave from their work in Ghana, were able to teach much about their new country to the assembled guests.

The missionaries are all anxious to return to their work abroad. Father McColl, 80, is a 50-year veteran of the African missions, and he insists on returning to his adopted homeland, where he is known as "The Rainmaker".

He has converted hundreds to his belief that God will provide what is needed, if one believes. He received his nickname because of an incident several years ago. After an extremely long drought, he told hundreds of natives to kneel down and pray for the much needed rain, and in desperation, they did.

As they were on their knees, torrential rains fell upon them. Father McColl has opened several hospitals and schools, albeit, primitive by our standards, but necessary.

Training of doctors, teachers and priests for posts in Africa is a never ending program.

The White Fathers of Thornhill depend on the generosity of local residents to continue their work in Africa, and during the social evening a presentation of much of the needed funds was made by Gordon Dodd, Past Grand Knight, on behalf of the Knights of Columbus. The White Fathers have continued their close association with the Knights of Columbus since their inception. Council members from Richmond Hill, Richvale, Thornhill, Markham and King Township were present for the evening.

Region cracks down on illegal animal slaughtering sites

A crackdown on illegal meat slaughtering operations is in the works in York Region, Dr. E. J. Holowaty, Associate Medical Officer of Health, said Thursday.

The illegal slaughter houses are "operating on quite a large scale," Dr. Holowaty told the members of the health and social services committee, despite the region's health inspectors.

They have been shut down several times and started up again. The regional solicitor is now working on taking them to court.

Dr. Holowaty said it is illegal to slaughter livestock except in the properly licensed premises, such as a custom killing operation except for one's own consumption.

It does not matter if the meat is still or given away, it is still illegal.

But Mr. Holowaty said the region would not be going after the farmer who slaughtered an animal for a neighbor or relative in the city.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S NOTES

The Ministry of Health has agreed that York Central Hospital should undertake renovations in the original building for a total cost not to exceed $1,060,000.

The first priority item is a new Intensive Care Unit of eight beds. At the present time, three beds at the end of the recovery room are being used for patients requiring intensive care, but these beds are insufficient in number and have many drawbacks which will be eliminated with the new area designed by the physicians and nurses who will work in it.

The second project will be the In Patient Psychiatric Unit as designed by the Psychiatric staff for their patients.

At the present time, a regular nursing floor in the new building is being used, but many special needs of these patients cannot be met because we do not have the special designs and facilities which can aid in their treatment. The third priority is a new Post partum and Nursery Area. This also has been designed by the physicians and nurses to ensure that the patients and newborn have the best facilities possible.

At the present time, these patients are in the new building in a regularly designed unit. The properly designed features will overcome the need to move the new mothers and newborn down the main corridor of the hospital so that they can be transported in private by elevator to their present area.

The fourth priority is our Nuclear Medicine department. At present, patients requiring this diagnostic procedure are sent to other hospitals by taxi or by ambulance, and in some cases are not sent; even though, they could benefit from the treatment; because their condition does not warrant the transfer.

In future, York Central Hospital will be able to provide this service to its patients and already there is a physician on staff who is licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to provide this service.

The final project will be to improve the outside service road and improve the traffic circulation around the hospital.

VOLUNTEERS

Thanks to the willing, capable and enthusiastic Junior Volunteers we are able to maintain our Volunteer Services during the summer months. Orientations were held in May and June for 36 new Junior Volunteers, and a special training session was held June 17 for all Juniors who had joined the Auxiliary since January of this year.

At present, 68 Junior Volunteers are working in the hospital, including five teenage boys who work on Escort, Pharmacy and Paediatric services. The Orthopedic clinic will continue to have volunteer assistance during the summer months... one volunteer helping in the fracture room and one (very kindly filling in for the summer) helping to pass the time of waiting by serving coffee and juice to the patients.

Numerous volunteer services depend on adult help, and the loyalty and faithfulness of those adults who continue to work during the summer months is much appreciated by the patients and staff.

RECREATION THERAPY

Summer is in the air at York Central Hospital, and much activity abounds.

On June 29, the hospital hosted a fashion show and clothing sale presented by "Caravan Clothes". More than 100 people attended...

Guests were invited from neighboring clubs and institutions including members from the Senior Citizens Club 35 in Richmond Hill and residents from King City Lodge, Markham Lodge, Town and Country Nursing Home and the Maple Nursing Home.

Thanks to the enthusiasm of some senior citizens and residents of the Continuing Care Unit, who volunteered as models, the fashion show was a great success and was enjoyed by all who attended and participated. Caravan Clothes is a mobile clothing service and caters to the needs of senior citizens and those requiring adaptive clothing.

Thanks to the ambition and ingenuity of its founder, Mrs. Pearl Godfrey, such a needed service exists.

During the past month, three firms have exhibited clothing and other items specifically designed for those with physical problems. Local stores cannot provide this specialized service because of techniques and knowledge involved.

Thornhill needs student painters

Students could do very well in the Thornhill-Willowdale area.

Hilary Nines, supervisor of the Canada Manpower Centre for Students in Willowdale, said they have had an "enormous number" of people this year asking for painters and they are running low on students with these skills.

She said students whom she placed in painting jobs earlier in the summer have established small painting businesses on their own through word of mouth referrals.

The placement office is also low in students with secretarial skills and Mrs. Nines said students seeking work in this field would certainly benefit by getting in touch with the Willowdale office at 221-5531.

She is also looking for students with a "D" licence, one which would permit them to drive heavier vehicles.

So far this year, the supervisor said, they have placed 1,188 students.

Mrs. Nines said they would appreciate having home owners or employers hire students for jobs that don't entail a need for experience.
