That he is a man of questionable character is evident from the fact that, when he was arrested a loaded revolver and three bowie knives were found upon his person; and his whole demeanour since his arrest has been that of a hardened scoundrel. Then the admissions that the man himself has made its perpetration—are all sufficiently remark- prove that he has been in Canada before; while the evidence of several of the witnesses, able. The murder of Mr. Nelles was a deed, who swere to having seen this man in the so unprovoked, so wantonly cruel, that it neighbourhood of Cayuga. but who did not could scarcely be committed but by the most know Townsend personally; but from the circumstances supposed this person to have been him; as, for instance, the witness named Kennedy and the gaoler and constable from Woodstock, leads to the conviction that he was about the Grand River at the time of the murder. Again, all the circumstances go to prove that if not really Townsend, he was a member of his gang, who has not hitherto been identified; and who at any rate, it is quite clear, must closely resemble him in his general appearance. The fact of such a man having been at the time in the neighbourhood may also have been one reason why the witnesses for the prosecution were so positive that the prisoner was Townsend himself. Further, those who saw Ritchie shot, identify this man as the murderer; and it must be remembered that the gaoler and constable at Woodstock, swore to this being the man whom they were ordered to arrest as the ma dever of Ritchie, who was described as seen on that occasion, and not with reference to any previous knowledge of Townsend. We may then assume the following as legitimate data; a man was in the vicinity. of Cayuga at the time of Nelles's murderthough probably not concerned in that affar Townsend, and who closely resembled him in person.-This man was arrested at Port Robinson for Townsend and made his escape
