

OHIP question continues to be debated

By ALF STONG
MLA — York Centre

The question of OHIP services continues to be debated. Opposition parties have continued to press the Minister of Health on how hospital medical services will be guaranteed at Ontario Health Insurance Plan rates. However, few details have been forthcoming. Last year, Dr. Stuart Smith attempted on a number of occasions to make the Minister of Health fully aware of the danger to universal access to medical care posed by the rapidly increasing number of physicians who were opting out of OHIP. However, the Minister remained unconcerned about the problem until it became clear last month that the number of opted out doctors had reached a point where it was difficult, if not impossible in some communities to obtain medical services at OHIP rates. In addition, certain specialist services such as anaesthesia, surgery and obstetrics were not available without surcharge because all the specialists at certain public hospitals had opted out. The Liberal Party remains absolutely committed to the idea that medical services must be available to the people of Ontario without any charge above what is paid by OHIP.

To guarantee this, we advanced, and the government accepted, several recommendations. In order to keep general practitioners participating in OHIP and encourage those who have opted out to opt back in, we proposed that the government increase the rate of remuneration for services performed by general practitioners under the OHIP Schedule of Benefits. We urged that in areas where all the doctors have opted out of OHIP, the government encourage the establishment of Health Services Organizations (publicly funded medical clinics) to provide service at OHIP rates.
