Cemetery opens in Richmond Hill

Toronto Trust Cemeteries, the non-profit organization that operates seven cemeteries in and around Metropolitan Toronto, has opened its latest property, Elgin Mills Cemetery.

Five years in the planning, and under intensive landscaping the last two years, Elgin Mills Cemetery encompasses 175 acres at the southeast corner of Leslie Street and Elgin Mills Road.

Of the total acreage, 40 acres constitutes the first phase of landscaped development.

Toronto Trust Cemeteries are well known throughout North America for the beautiful grounds of their cemeteries. Perhaps the best known is Mount Pleasant Cemetery which is visited annually by many thousands of people... botanists, zoologists, schoolchildren with their teachers, horticulturalists as well as residents of Toronto... to admire what has become one of the finest arboretums on the continent.

"The landscaping process that led to Mount Pleasant becoming such a fine arboretum has begun at Elgin Mills," said Trust general manager Robert Smith. "It is something that fits in with our philosophy that cemeteries are for the living, places to be enjoyed. For that reason we welcome visitors who are looking for a quiet green place away from city streets, in which to walk, bicycle, perhaps even to jog and cross-country ski."

Another member of our community, Dorell Stong, has "adopted" a child through Foster Parents Plan of Canada.

Mrs. Stong supports six-year-old Silvia Ponce from Bolivia and her family which includes four brothers and three sisters.

The Foster Parents Plan provides a monthly cash grant or material benefits, free medical and dental care, free prescriptions, the sustained guidance and counselling of social workers and the benefits of many special programs.

At this time Foster Parents Plan is working in seventeen countries in South America, Central America, Asia and Africa, aiding more than 100,000 children.
