

Camp counsellors to learn about asthmatic kids

Counsellors for the Family Y day camp programs will learn how to protect and care for your asthmatic child this week.

"The asthmatic child is not a sick child — unless having an attack," said Sue Birrell, program coordinator for the York-Toronto Lung Association and added the association encourages such children to join in regular camp activities.

A registered nurse working with the lung association will explain to counsellors what asthma is, how it is best managed and treated, and remind the counsellors of a few points which may be forgotten in a "fun" camp experience.

She wants wheelchair parking spaces moved

Those two parking spaces allocated for wheelchair parking on the east side of the library will soon disappear — only to reappear on the west side of the building.

The Richmond Hill Public Library has recently completed modifications to the main library to allow for easier access by the handicapped.

Chief Librarian for the library, Betty Rowland asked engineering committee members to redesignate the spaces to the west side of the parking lot, adjacent to the new ramp entrance. A bylaw will be prepared and presented to council as soon as possible.

Messy area bugs Duffy

Ward 2 councillor, Al Duffy, brought up a chronic concern in his ward to council members last week.

The properties on Pugsley Avenue known as the Mills Roses lands have not been cleaned up as owners promised, and residents are concerned.

The main worries include the chimney still standing on the west side of Pugsley, above Centre Street, the abandoned building on the east side at the curve, the burnt out structure by the railroad tracks and the abandoned green houses, just south of Crosby Avenue.

Commissioner of Works, Bernie Toporowski, said these properties are in the process of being sold and he has personally talked with both parties and feels confident they will co-operate with the town when the sale is completed.

Counsellors will be reminded a lot of young children have food allergies, so campers need to be advised not to switch lunches, said Mrs. Birrell.

Because asthmatic children cannot go directly from quiet activities to active games without the possibility of triggering an attack, the nurse will show a few warm up exercises to practice with the kids.

Mrs. Birrell said those in charge will be shown some offending plants to watch for and advised to stay clear of dusty or heavily pollinated areas.

The worst areas are those full of high June grass, said the program director, for both asthmatics and children with allergies.

York-Toronto Lung Association will provide the camp with a nurse, back-up medication, oxygen tanks and non-allergic nylon tents.
