Residents have no desire to subdivide their lots

The Annswell Concerned Citizens, a growing group of residents, most of whom are living on Elgin Street and the immediately surrounding streets, wish to express their opposition to plans for erecting a two, three and six-storey apartment complex, south of Elgin Street and east of Dudley Avenue, beside Thornhill United Church.

We question in particular the wisdom of Mr. Fenson's quotation in last week's Liberal suggesting that it would be best to split deep lots on the south side of Elgin Street at the rear of single family dwellings.

Many residents on that side of Elgin Street have no intention at all of subdividing their deep lots and see no need for it.

On the contrary, we prefer our property as it is and very much cherish the privacy these lots provide.

It is our desire to maintain this unique single family dwelling residential character, which in most cases was one of the main reasons we bought property in the area.

We feel that to destroy that feature would remove the particular charm of the area.

We have done all we can, at the cost of great personal sacrifice, to preserve that single dwelling residential character.

A new two, three and six story building would violate existing zoning regulations and would be against our interpretation of the area's zoning.

We are very much against our immediate area turning into a downtown style region with hi-rise buildings, double level limited parking space, overcrowded streets and traffic angles in our back yards and around our homes.

Some families with youngsters are extremely scared of the more frequent use of Elgin Street by traffic between Yonge Street and Bayview Avenue.

By increasing the dwelling density, traffic no doubt will become even heavier.

The Annswell Concerned Citizens strongly oppose the approval of the planned 105-unit apartment structure.

The proposed bylaw change will come before an Ontario Municipal Board hearing on Tuesday, July 17 at 10 a.m. in the Town of Markham Municipal Building on Woodbine Ave.

Thatcher answered, why can't ministers?

Mr. William Hodgson, MPP, Queen's Park Toronto

Dear Bill,

I got your kind letter of June 15 acknowledging my complaint of receiving no answers from Health Minister Timbrell, Attorney General McMurtry and Premier William Davis to my several letters — one dating back to February 1st.

You told me that you had delivered a copy of my letter of June 12 to you, by hand to each minister, and that you expected I would hear from them in the immediate future.

I regret to say that to this date I have not heard from any minister.

Including your reminder to him, the attorney general has now been written to three times, dating back to April.

Four hundred years ago, Shakespeare, speaking thro' Hamlet, said: "The law's delay, The insolence of office, & the spurns That patient merit of the unworthy takes"

I must tell you this: As you would know, I take a deep interest in political, social, and many other matters.

I seek out information and contact with many people.

When Britain elected Margaret Thatcher recently, I was so enthralled by this phenomenal and historic event that I had to write her a letter of congratulation.

Despite her enormous workload and responsibilities, and much to my surprise, she wrote me a personal note of thanks within two weeks.

Further, though I have nothing but contempt and aversion for liberal philosophy, for most Liberal politicians, I'll say this for them.

They are smart enough, sincerely or otherwise, to acknowledge the existence of those they profess to serve at times other than election.

In recent years I have had two — and three-page personally signed letters from both John Turner and Pierre Trudeau in answer to my democratic and pointed comments on government.

Maybe the present Ontario premier and cabinet are above such patronage. Maybe that is why their political power base has crumbled badly in the past two provincial elections.

I especially wish to hear from the attorney general, since I am appalled by the present laxity and bias of law enforcement, the decriminalization of crime, and the toleration of those minority interests that would denounce us as oppressors, make us knaves and servants in our own house.

Do we have a Progressive Conservative Party, or do we just have two Liberal parties, one of which is misnamed?

Thornhill chapter helps new program

The York Centre for Learning Disabilities have expanded their service to include an adolescent program known as the Phoenix Program.

The program is operated as a division of the York Centre as it will be funded entirely through private and community contributions.

The program has two major goals.

The first is the immediate goal of assisting the adolescent towards improved functioning in the normal setting of home and school.

The second is the long term goal of assisting the adolescent in that process leading to healthy, competent adult status.

I wish to acknowledge the contribution of the Thornhill Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

The fund raising for this program is now under way.

We look forward to the same tremendous support we received from the Thornhill community last year during our building project.
