

Thornhill fall activities resume in full

Now that school has started, the Scouting season is right around the corner. In preparation for the first meeting of York Summit District Council is this evening, 7:30 p.m. at Hillcrest Mall. The Council generally meets the first Wednesday of each month and competent people are urgently required for positions on the Council. For example, someone interested in conservation may want to head a project called "Trees for Canada", wherein the trees donated by the conservation authority are planted by the York Summit Scouts each spring. The Council oversees 25 Scouting groups in York Summit District and its program stands to be one of the most successful of all youth programs to date. Plans for the coming year include the formation of a committee to find a new headquarters for the group. Anyone interested in joining York Summit District Council should contact its President Jim Matt at 297-3419.
