It takes 3
to complete a call

It takes three to complete a telephone call: the operator, the person calling and the person called. If any one of the three is at fault, the call fails.

Uncompleted telephone calls are a serious public problem. We call attention to it because we want you to have the best possible service at lowest possible cost.

Every day in Ontario and Quebec there are over one million local telephone calls which are blocked — a waste of two million minutes a day — a congestion of traffic — a source of irritation — a handicap to perfect service.

Some of these uncompleted calls cannot be helped and some are due to our own errors, which we are constantly reducing. Many of the failures — "Line's Busy" — "They don't Answer" — "No one on the line now" — "Wrong Number" — originate with the other two parties to the call.

We plan now to give publicity to common faults in telephone usage in the hope that there may be a mutual effort to maintain high efficiency of telephone service.

*It is costing more than $27,000,000 this year to extend and improve telephone service in Ontario and Quebec.

Gospel Tent Meeting

The following poem was composed by the undersigned in moments while his heart was burdened with anxiety for those amongst whom he was now laboring

With a vision of my own sinful past looming up vividly before me, and with the thoughts of my terribly narrow escape I had of going out into eternity forever in a lost condition. I feel inspired to place these verses before the readers of the Russell Leader with the hope that may be induced to experience a more profound thought concerning eternal things and that you may not be numbered among those who depart this life forever without making your peace with God,

O, Why Don't You Come?

As I ponder in the twilight of evening
On the things that have faded and gone:
My soul soars away in its fancy,
Toward a world that is silent and lone.

The Gospel of God is before me,
In visions of rapture I behold;
And my heart is now stirred with emotion,
As I think of its blessings untold,

The years that have faded in sorrow,
Of a life filled with sin and despair;
Are now crowned with the brightness of morning,
And with radiance, gleam in the air.

God has lifted me up from obscurity,
When all earthly hope died away;
To tell to the world the old story,
Of Jesus who's coming some day.

He called me from down in the gutter,
Choked with grime, and with filth and decay;
And sent me away on my journey,
With glad tidings of Heaven's bright way.

I have trodden the winepress of sorrow,
Till my life was most crushed out with pain;
Then Jesus he lifted the burden,
And I now behold the Lamb that was slain.

He bids me go help him to garner,
The sheaves that are ripened with grain,
To thrust out the tares and the thistles,
To linger on in sorrow and pain

O, will you not heed to his pleading,
As the twilight of night draweth nigh;
And the angels are hovering around us,
As we gaze toward the bright summer sky.

The world rushes on in its frenzy,
Like a lightning bolt on its way
To pierce and destroy with its power;
And souls have no time for to pray.

Some day we'll be startled in sadness,
When the Angel of death calls on you;
To drop in a moment' and forever,
All the things you're holding on to.

And then there'll be weeping and wailing,
Because you have failed to prepare;
To meet with your God and your judgment,
And your vision is only despair.

O God, wilt thou give me the power,
Before 'tis forever too late;
To guide them to Heaven's bright portals,
So they won't miss the pearly white gate.
