Castor Earl Why the "Y"?

Ol' Earl is now a full-fledged, able-bodied, half-dead member of the "Y".

Yep. The good, ol' YMCA only now it's the YM-YWCA 'cause they went and let women-folk into the same swimmin' pool with the men.

Not that I object, mind. I'm all for women's rights and all that junk. I let the missus have her rights once a week wether she wants them or not.

Anyhow, I figured the spare tire was inflatin' a little too much and I needed some exercise. I have to keep this exceptional physique finely tuned, you know.

It's just too dang cold to jog outside 'through I still see other lads — mostly city types — runnin' through the snowdrifts.

So I went down and signed up for the "Y". It's great but it can be a little complicated tryin' to tell about as I found out when I told the missus.

"I up and joined the "Y", I says to her the other night.

"Why?", she says.

"That's right, the "Y", I replies.

"No, why?" she comes again.

"There is too a "Y", I says, wonderin' why she's actin' so dumb. "It's in the city."

"Why, why, why?", she screams.

"Yes, yes, yes," I tells her. "Dang nab it, woman. Are you deaf. I told you three times."

"Damnation," she says, really mad. "You crazy ol' coot. I'm askin' you why you joined the "Y".

"Oh," I says, humble-like, "Just 'cause."

Like I was sayin', the "Y" is a good spot for sport. They've got all kinds of contraptions there that if they don't kill ya first, will trim ya right down.

They got somethin' they call the universal gym that must have been a circus exhibit at one time. She's got weights on 'er, bars, peddles, seats... the only thing missin' is a steam whistle.

I tried 'er out for size and got so tangled up it took two instructors and a cuttin' torch to get me out.

They got other swell things too, like bicycles that never go nowhere no matter how fast you peddle. I told the instructors it might help if they took 'em off the stands and put on front wheels but they just gave me a funny look.

After I ride the bikes, I lift weights a bit — a real little bit — jog, and hang out at the chin-up bar for awhile.

They even have a weightliftin' course for ladies. Why little teensy ladies would want to build muscles when they got big he-men like yours truly around to protect them, I'll never know. In fact, I asked one just that very question.

"Come any closer Buster and I'll show you," she says.

Well, you learn somethin' every day, I always says.
