

Druella Acantha Malvina's Column

Gem Of The Month - Temptation usually comes in through a door that has deliberately been left open..

One of my friends had a parakeet called Hansi and it was a valued and affectionate member of the family. She thought it would be great if he could say his name, so she repeated "Hansi" to him again and again. She became very frustrated as the weeks went by and "What's Your Name?" remained unanswered. Then one evening when I was visiting, our feathered friend perched opposite me, spread his wings and demanded, "What's your name, dammit?"

Did you know? - According to researchers from New York Universities men who take annual vacations are less likely to die of heart disease than those who skipped vacations. The conclusion is that time off may contribute to good health by providing an escape from stress and more time with family and friends. (Reader's Digest)
