SOUTH BAY LIGHT

For untold years it guided shipping
From the shoals on Main Duck bight,
Sending out a beam of warning
Through the blasting storm-tossed night.

In retirement now it shelters,
Far from rocks where once it lay,
Proudly standing in safe harbour
On the margin of South Bay.

Now as I am driving homeward,
Headlights cutting through the night,
All my thoughts are flying forward.
Heading for the South Bay Light.

I have seen my share of turmoil,
Faced the perils of the night,
Now my roots are in the same soil
As the tower of South Bay Light.

Others now will guard the seaboard,
Others will uphold the right;
I am heading homeward, homeward,
Guided by the South Bay Light.

- Alan Whiteley
