A LITTLE FURTHER TO GO... BUT WORTH THE DRIVE

EASTER MORNING AT LITTLE BLUFF

In the pre-dawn gloom that first Easter Sunday
They brought spices to embalm their King,
Not knowing that the tomb lay widely empty
Or that a resurrected Christ walked free.
So we, two thousand light years later,
Gather round a camp fire's glowing coals,
Each seeking evidence of a Creator,
Some reassurance we are not lost souls.
Here on this bluff, as friends are softly singing,
The Easter sun breaks through a bank of cloud,
And all is silent, not a bird is stirring,
As life is resurrected, clear, unbowed.
Then softly calls a loon across the lake
And all our joy and hopes of life awake.
