

Information About Lake Ontario's Water Levels

By Sam Lanfranco

If you are dealing with higher Lake Ontario water levels, they are not just a result of the higher spring rains. They are also a result of the Plan 2014 for regulating the waters of Lake Ontario, a plan put into practice in January of this year. See <http://www.ijc.org/en/Plan2014/home>

Shoreline communities in New York are upset by the rising water level, especially since they had designed infrastructure and home sites based on the 70 year old previous water level agreements. Here is a link to the concerns of the New York shoreline communities: <http://wrvo.org/post/katko-calls-action-if-plan-2014-causes-flood-damage>

Some are suggesting applying for Federal funding relief since this is the result of a Federal International (Canada/USA) Joint Commission agreement. For coastal flooding and erosion see <http://www.ijc.org/en/Plan2014/Response Document 6>.
