morning, but a shot of Irish Whiskey went down surprisingly well. That's the hallmark of a good workshop. One little cupboard reserved for rewarding your friends with "a taste." A dust collection system is nice, but expensive. A little cupboard and some shot glasses and a bottle of good whiskey is better appreciated by your friends and is a lot cheaper. They'll ignore the dust. The prize does not always go to the competent.

laws but thank heavens for the foresight of government or we would be in just as much of a mess as the folks next door.

Well, the man is coming this morning to replace the eaves trough on the front of my house so I had best get myself organised. The nice thing about owning a house is if you can't think of anything else to do there is always something that needs fixing.

My thanks again to the community and the organisers of Milford Fair for a fun day and the opportunity to see so many that I have not seen in quite some time. It was very special to be among family and friends.
