If you can't get away to somewhere warm and exotic this winter, you might like to escape, at least in your imagination, with a wonderful series of detective novels by Martin Walker, Bruno, Chief of Police, which, of course, you can find at our library.

Inspector Bruno is a former soldier, now a policeman, who lives in the beautiful village of St. Denis in the south of France. However, the idyllic lifestyle is disrupted by a series of murders and intrigues in the French countryside. It's great fun to follow Inspector Bruno as he shops for food in the local markets, buys his wine and prepares delicious meals – all while carrying out his detective duties.

For our younger readers, here are two picks from our librarian, Kathy:

For young adults/teens: Say you will by Eric Walters

For the kids: The Pigeon will ride the roller coaster by Mo Willems.

Looking ahead, your Milford library has some exciting events in store. Some of you may already know that our County library system has some extremely interesting machines in their collection, like a 3D printer and an embroidery machine. The Friends of the Milford Library are planning a demonstration and Q&A
