More New Credit History

A New Credit resident has pointed out an omission in last weeks mini-history of New Credit. The land surrounding the Grand River was bought from none other than the Mississaugas by the Crown and given to the Iroquois Five Nations after the Ward of Independence in the U.S.A. in 1776.

So when the New Credit lands were purchased from the Six Nations the Mississaugas Ojibways were buying back land they had once owned.
