

Non-disclosure agreement possibly violated

Tekawennake has learned that a discussion about the troubled construction of a Six Nations' Stoneridge Day Care that took place during Elected Council's Committee of the Whole on April 8 may have been in violation of a non-disclosure agreement.

The discussion should have taken place in camera, but did not, something Senior Administrative Officer Dayle Bomberry advised of at the regular council meeting on April 9. While most of the councillors said they were in favour of continuing the discussion in public, Councillors Roger Jonathan (District Three) and Melba Thomas (District Six) disagreed with their colleagues.

Councillor Helen Miller (District Four) said there was no reason to move to in camera as it had been openly discussed at the Committee of the Whole on April 8.

During the discussion about moving the matter to in camera, Bomberry said he had been caught off guard at the Committee meeting because there had been no information provided about the matter before the Committee meeting. A former subcontractor had appeared at the Committee meeting, and Councillor Helen Miller had added him to the agenda.

"It should have been put in camera," Bomberry told council.

Bomberry did not confirm or deny the existence of the possible non-disclosure agreement when asked by Tekawennake just before the meeting of Elected Council on April 16. Bomberry did say the matter would be discussed in camera.
