Const. Misti Anthony was sworn in Monday as the first native female officer on the Six Nations Police Force.

Police force on Six Nations called 'historic first model' by Ontario's solicitor general

OHSWEKEN — Ontario Solicitor General Joan Smith says she hopes more Indian reserves in the province can have their own police forces.

“I hope that the achievement of Six Nations in developing and implementing its own police force will serve as an encouragement for other indigenous peoples,” she told a gathering of 150 people here Monday.
