Wouldn't it Be Nice

Wouldn't this old world be better
If the folks we meet would say,
'I know something good about you';
And then treat us just that way?

Wouldn't it be fine and dandy
If each handclasp, warm and true,
Carried with it this assurance,
'I know something good about you' ?

Wouldn't life be lots more happy,
If the good that's in us all
Were the only thing about us
That folks bothered to recall?

Wouldn't life be lots more happy,
If we praised the good we see?
For there's such a lot of goodness
In the worst of you and me.

Wouldn't it be nice to practice
That fine way of thinking, too?
You know something good about me,
I know something good about you! "

Historical Research

(N.E.J.)

Query: Were the Cherokees of U.S.A. related to the Six Nations Indians of Canada?

My historical research began. The following is the context of knowledge I have gained, so far -

The Cherokees were the largest group of the Iroquoian tribes but never came to the point of joining the Iroquois Confederacy (League of Peace) though every Indian tribe was given the privilege to enter the Confederation. The Iroquois, however, allied themselves with the British in the American Revolutionary War but the Cherokees did great service to the United States in the War of 1812.

They have large tribal properties in Oklahoma and a reservation in North Carolina, U.S.A. Years ago they numbered 26,000 in Oklahoma and about 1400 in North Carolina. They are an industrious people and have attained a great degree of culture and civilization by making use of all educational facilities.

At one time, gold was discovered in their territory, and as the story usually goes, their lives of misery began. Previously a Removal Act was passed, later their lands were confiscated and in all wonderment who became King Midas?

I have had a glimpse of their lives of suffering in the past through a little booklet entitled "The Vale of Tears" written by a Cherokee Indian.

Further research and study are necessary as Cherokees are actually brothers to the Six Nations Indians.

Beginning next week, there will be a children's page in Tekawennake; so come, kids, send in your articles.

Miss Nora E. Jamieson is the editor of "The Children's Page."

Easy Recipe for a Good Brunch Dish

Creamed, sliced hard boiled eggs on canned Chinese noodles that have been crisped in the oven are a tempting combination of velvety sauce and crunchy base.
