

South Porcupine Items of Interest

Mr. R. L. Seythis, of Toronto, was a visitor in camp this week and registered at the King George Hotel.

Mr. P. R. Allison, of Porcupine, was a guest at the King George on Thursday.

Mr. W. Monaghan, of Matheson, was a visitor in camp this week.

Mr. David Kennedy of Collingwood was a visitor in camp this week and registered at the King George.

Mr. Geo. Mansbridge, of London, paid the camp a visit last week.

Inspectors Blackman and Atkinson were in town again last week. We are wondering what brings them here so often.

Mr. W. Egerton George, of North Bay, was registered at the King George Hotel last week.

Mr. H. S. Walsh, of Kingston, was visiting the camp last week.

Mr. Eugene Bessette, of Haileybury, was registered at the King George Hotel on Friday.

Mr. W. R. Lowry, of Cobalt, was in camp this week.

Mr. J. W. W. Stuart, of London, was a guest at the King George on Thursday.

Miss Olive Berry returned to camp on Thursday, after spending a two weeks vacation at Haileybury.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Spins, of Huntsville were in town on Saturday.

Mr. E. H. Ashley of Porcupine was in town Saturday.

Mrs. C. Gallagher entertained at tea on Friday afternoon from four o'clock until six.

Mr. G. Lelievria and Miss I. Cote were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last week. Rev. Father Pelletier, of the Roman Catholic Church, performed the ceremony.

In spite of the large crowd which left South Porcupine on Saturday to attend the Sports at Timmins, the Majestic Theatre was crowded. It is a treat to see all the people in the camp once in a while.

Mrs. N. Servais gave a luncheon on Saturday in honor of Mrs. Miller of the Dome Mines. The latter is leaving shortly for her new home in Pittsburg.

Mr. Tony Ogino has purchased the shoe repairing shop of the late Andy Hayes, who enlisted with the 159th Battalion. No doubt Tony repairs shoes as well as he eats spaghetti.

Enthusiastic Crowd Hear Cherniavskys

Music lovers in Timmins were given a real treat on Friday evening, when they filled the Empire Theatre to its capacity. It was a most appreciative gathering, and the Cherniavskys were given an attentive hearing which did credit to the good taste of the audience, as well as allowing the performers every opportunity of showing their ability to the best possible advantage.

It was an entertainment new to this mining town, but the appreciation shown and the applause which followed each number, will no doubt encourage the management to book other artists of this class for future engagements.

The Cherniavskys undoubtedly lived up to the reputation which preceded them in numerous advance notices and they were unstinting in the matter of encores.

The trios rendered at the opening of the program were highly appreciated and served to whet the appetite of the audience for the solo which were to follow. The individual work of the three brothers in their respective parts showed conclusively that genius alone had placed them at the top of the musical world, and that press notices could neither make or break the reputation of artists of their calibre.

Mischel Cherniavsky left nothing to be desired in his wonderful achievements upon the Cello; his third number, Rhapsodie, being particularly noteworthy, though all three of his solo parts were most excellent.

On the piano, Jan Cherniavsky gave an interpretation that could scarcely be improved upon by the greatest living pianists of the present day, and his unostentatious style at the piano created a good impression, as a Timmins audience naturally ally prefer good music rather than the grotesque contortions indulged in by some artists in this line of work, which were entirely absent in Jan Cherniavsky, who confined his physical actions to just what were necessary to a proper expression of his art. Rigoletto, the well known Verdi-Liszt composition was probably his best offering, bringing the audience to a state of appreciation which proved completely he had captivated his hearers.

In the Violin soli, Leo Cherniavsky did not allow the ardor of the audience to cool, but added still more laurels to the crown of these talented brothers. It would be difficult indeed to choose between the excellence of his three numbers. Ave Maria was rendered with that appealing, supplicating expression which only the master hand can draw from his instrument. That universal favorite, Humoresque, known to all followers of good music, and also the Danse Basque, left nothing to be desired from the standpoint of the most critical audience.

The trios, which concluded the program, served to cap the climax of the evening's feast of music, and the expressions of approval which were heard on all sides, auger well for the success of future ventures in this line by the Empire management.
