

Only Extravagant, Rich Men Can Afford Cheap Shoes

Cheap shoes are made for the man who wants new shoes every month or so. They have no rightful place in the wardrobe of those of us who must economize. For, if you figure shoe cost by the wear and not by the pair, you will find that the less you pay for shoes by the pair the more they cost you by the calendar.

The least costly thing about shoes is the surface finish. To the average man a cheap upper can be made to look like the finest calf. And the finest oak-tanned sole looks no better than the colored and varnished product which must be used in cheap shoes.

If you are so rich that you don't care about money, or so extravagant that you do not think about it, you will be satisfied with cheap shoe service. But if you would economize and at the same time enjoy perfect foot comfort and trim appearance, then buy a good shoe. It will more than pay you to invest the extra dollar or so that cents per pair for the sake of $3.00 or $4.00 worth of extra wear they give you. Prove this fact for yourself with one of the new Oxford's now on display.

INDIGNATION EXPRESSED AT THE METHODIST

Disapproval of Tobacco Sent To Boys In The Trenches—Col. Donald's Strong Comment

Methodist disapproval of sending tobacco to the soldiers does not seem to awaken universal sympathy in Toronto. The conference by unanimous resolution, expressed its regret that "many whose lips were pure before have been led to a habit which otherwise might have been avoided."

Prominent clergymen, military men, and business men to-day expressed surprise in terms sometimes mild, sometimes severe. The most favorable expression used was "They mean well."

The resolution which has aroused so much discussion was a part of the report of the Sunday School Committee, of which Rev. A. A. Wall, of Davisville, is chairman, and Rev. F. J. Purchase is secretary.

Tobacco Showers.

In explanation of the resolution, Rev. A. P. Brice, of this city, said: "We have no objection to the sending of tobacco to men accustomed to smoking."

"We framed our resolution only on account of those who are not used to tobacco and may be brought to form the habit. We feel strongly against the suggestion which has been made by young girls, even in our Sunday schools, of holding 'tobacco showers' for the soldiers. The use of tobacco is something which our Sunday schools are opposing, and we object to anything that is likely to lead on young people who have not used tobacco so far to form the habit."

Try It Themselves.

"Tell them to go into the trenches and sit around for days at a time doing nothing, and see how they like that," said Col. Duncan Donald, of the 48th Highlanders. "They are a lot of blankety-blank idiots, old fossils who don't know what they are talking about. It doesn't matter what you send those men, so long as it doesn't interfere with their efficiency. Tobacco is necessary for those men at the front. It is far better for them to smoke than for half of them to come back with nervous prostration. As for 'pure lips,' these expressions make me tired. I'd like to see the mover of that resolution and tell him a few plain, straight facts in Queen's English."

"We Disgust People," Says One.

"If we keep putting on unnecessary restrictions, we do harm and simply disgust people," said Ven. Archbishop Inglis, whose son has fallen for the Empire. "Tobacco is a strength and help to many men, and it seems a pity to restrict the sending of it when restriction is not necessary. I don't smoke myself," added Archbishop Inglis. "but I sent tobacco to my boy last fall. Of course, the vet canteen is a different thing, and I am not in favor of that."

SAVED FROM THREE BIG LINER WRECKS

One of the survivors of the Lusitania is a stoker named Tonner, who claims that he was not born to be drowned. And he has better reason than most for saying so, as he has been saved from the wrecks of the Titanic, the Empress of Ireland, and the Lusitania. But with such a record other stokers will not care to ship on the same vessel with him.

This is the Last Issue Free of The Porcupine Advance.

A middle-aged farmer accosted a serious faced youth outside the Grand Central Station in New York the other day.

"Young man," he said, plucking his sleeves, "I want you to Central Park."

The youth seemed lost in consideration for a moment.

"Well," he said finally, "you may just this once. But I don't want you ever, ever to ask me again."

DRASTIC CHANGES IN LIQUOR LAWS

Significant Remark Dropped by Chairman of License Commissioners

Suggestion of a possible sweeping change in the administration of liquor licenses in the Province of Ontario was contained in a casual remark made by Mr. J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners, when the application of a London hotel for renewal was being made before the board.

Mr. James Haverson, K.C., who was arguing the case for the applicants, suggested that as the Board might have certain drastic changes to make next year, which could not be made this year, it would be well to give his client, Mr. P. J. McEvoy, of the Windsor Hotel, an opportunity during the present year to prove to them his ability to conduct his house in the interests of the community.

"Does that mean that you anticipate such changes?" asked one of the members of the commission.

"Well I've heard certain rumors, and it is pretty generally accepted that something of the kind will be done," replied Mr. Haverson.

"Perhaps you're not so far astray," commented Mr. Flavelle.

IN HUMOROUS VEIN.

One day master and servant were fiddling together, and as they finished the master said:

"You handle the low pretty well Tom, but you are always a bar or so behind. Why is that?"

"Out of de'rence to you, majah," said Tom.

An old and experienced lawyer decided to turn over part of his large practise to his son in order to start him in life. Everything went smoothly until on one occasion the son came in his father's office with a beaming smile upon his face.

"I say, dad," he said joyously, "you know that Wright case that you've been engaged in for the last twelve years."

"Yes," admitted the old lawyer.

"Well, what about it?"

"I've settled it!" exclaimed the son.

"Settled it!" shouted his father. "You great, lumbering fool! Why, I gave you that case as an annuity!"
