The jail building, which is two storey affair with six office rooms and six cells, has about reached the finished stage. Magistrate T. H. Torrance commenced moving his office there this week. It is convenient, having the court room and jail under one cover. It avoids the public humiliation of the street and so handy to only have to step across a hallway and get freedom or what's coming to you. Keep out if you can, for self-respect and the jail bunks are not congenial bed fellows.

The T. & N. O. Railway Commission has arranged with the other railways to give excursions from all points in Ontario west of Ottawa and Brockville to Temiskaming and return at 1 cent per mile. In other words, excursionists do not pay for a return ticket, but will be charged one cent each way. This is an exceptionally low rate, and surely many people will take advantage of it.

The excursion starts on the 25th, and tickets are good until the first of October.
