"INTOLERANCE" AT THE NEW EMPIRE

Spectacular Production to be Shown
Thursday, November 15th. (Evening and Matinee.)

Those who were so impressed by the wonderful production shown here last year, "The Birth of a Nation," have often wondered whether as imposing a theme and as spectacular a rendering could be repeated in any other picture. As an answer to this question, the same director, D. W. Griffiths, has produced a play that is credited with rivalling, if it does not excel the former success, "The Birth of a Nation." This new play is "Intolerance," an attraction booked for the New Empire Theatre on Thursday November 15th. The press has spoken of "Intolerance," in superlatives and for a colossal spectacle it would be hard to equal. The New Empire Theatre, with its usual enterprise has secured this event for one of its first appearances in the North Land. In every respect "Intolerance," may be classed as "something different" from other stage productions. Paris of the Middle Ages, Babylon of the reign of Belshazzar the Magnificent, and Judea of the time of Christ, are depicted with the most striking realism and historic accuracy. To convey any idea of the splendor of the Babylonian scenes would be impossible,—the pictures must be seen to be appreciated. And Babylon holds but one quarter of the interest in the scenes. The motive of the play is to prove through a spectacular combination of poetic and dramatic episodes that any one can be the victim of the intolerant forces which led to the fall of Babylon, the midnight massacres of medieval France and the dominant tragedy on Calvary's mount. The play also shows that "Intolerance" is the same through the ages in its motives and effects. The stories through the play are no less thrilling than the wonderful scenery and magnificent staging.

A feature of the production is the musical score which is interpreted by a symphony orchestra of six.

AND MR. KEDECKLE PAID THE COSTS

Justice of the Peace Montgomery had an interesting case before him on Monday morning, with a good representation of lawyers and other honest men. Mr. H. Kedekle, merchant of Cedar street, charged a Russian gentleman whose name sounds like it spells, or spells like it sounds, with assault. Mr. Kedekle's story, partly corroborated by his clerk's story, was to the effect that he asked this customer in his store where he bought a certain pair of gloves. The gentleman's reply was to consign the merchant to a warmer clime. Mr. Kedekle flatly refuses to go there, and the customer then said, according to Mr. Kedekle, "If you ask me again I'll punch your face." "You can't do that," was the reply that Mr. Kedekle said he made to this, but he admitted that the man not only could but did. Mr. Kedekle also admitted that he thought the man had taken the gloves from his store, as on a former occasion he had priced just this kind of gloves but refused to buy saying he would not take them at any price. Mr. Kedekle claimed he did not call the man a thief or anything like that, and did not touch him. The accused, on the contrary, swore that Kedekle's clerk sent for Kedekle when he saw the gloves, and then Kedekle had told him that he had stolen the gloves. He replied that he had bought the gloves at Buevetsky's store and he advised Kedekle to go to Cobalt, or words to that effect. Instead of going, Kedekle had rolled up his sleeves and grabbed him by the throat, breaking his collar. Then he had pushed Kedekle away very gently, so that the said Kedekle reclined on the floor. When the merchant started to get up he was about to push him away again even more gently, but a friend interposed, and the victory was won. This friend also gave evidence fully corroborating the story told by the accused. After learned argument by Solicitor Forbes for the complainant and by Solicitor O'Sullivan for the accused, the Justice dismissed the case, taxing Mr. Kedekle with the court costs, $4.50.

J. P. Taillon, Treasurer.

During October also, the Timmins Red Cross was paid $500; South Porcupine Patriotic Society, $400; Schumacher Red Cross $400; and the D.Y.B. Club $150.
