"WELCOME" ARCH REMOVED ON ACCOUNT OF FIRE RISK

Many have remarked on the possible and probable danger to adjoining buildings from some one carelessly throwing a lighted match or a cigarette or cigar butt into the "Welcome" arch erected some weeks ago at the corner of Pine street and Third Avenue. After the disastrous fire at South Porcupine last week these citizens were more nervous than before about the matter, and Fire Chief Bolland thought best not to continue the risk. Accordingly he asked that the Town remove the arch, so that this possibility of fire might be done away with. The boughs that covered the arch were fast drying and seemed to be in condition to easily take fire. The shape and style of the timber arch suggested that it would make a fierce fire if once started and would place in danger the buildings nearby, particularly if the fire started at night and got some headway before discovered. As a result of the Fire Chief's suggestion, the Board of Works removed the arch on Saturday. Work was commenced on the removal of the arch on Saturday morning under the supervision of Mr. J. D. Maclean, Town Foreman. Mr. Gib, McInnis and his team of huskies looked after the removal of the timber and brush. "I'll show you how to work, bo," says Gib, and sure enough before two o'clock there was not a vestige of the arch in sight, the whole thing being all cleared away. As several remarked, it did not take as long to clear away the arch as it did to build it, though it was built in a hurry at that. The street now looks bare and strange without this ornament, and many regret the necessity for its removal. "No one could be more sorry than I am," says the Fire Chief, "but Safety First is the best policy." The soldiers still to return, however, may rest assured that they are very welcome, even if the arch is not there to say so. The arch was one of the finest in the North Land.

PTE. MAXWELL STUDOR IMPROVED IN HEALTH

The daily newspapers last week chronicling the death of Pte. Maxwell Studor from influenza at London were evidently in error. On Saturday last Mr. J. M. Studor received the following telegram from Ottawa regarding his son:

Ottawa, May 16th, 1919.

Cable from England states Private Maxwell Studor condition improved. Has been boarded for return to Canada.

Director of Records.

All here will be pleased to learn that the first report was incorrect, and that Private Studor on the contrary is sufficiently recovered from recent illness to be ready to return to his home here.

MCINTYRE WINS PRACTICE GAME FROM TIMMINS

On Monday evening a Pick-up team went over from Timmins to Schumacher to play the postponed game with the McIntyre Football Club. Earlier in the day it had been decided to postpone the game further but this proving later unsuitable for the McIntyre team, Timmins agreed to play. It was impossible, however, to get more than four of the regular Timmins team together, the other players from here being "pick-up" or "scrubs," one stranger, a returned soldier, being conscripted on the way out, and another man being actually pressed into service on the grounds. Even with this scratch team, however, Timmins put up an interesting contest, the score they claim being 2 to 1 in favor of McIntyre. Another goal for the McIntyre is denied on the grounds that it was scored several minutes overtime, due to the umpire's watch stopping. With the regular team, however, the Timmins boys think that they will make an altogether different showing with the McIntyre, and they are patiently awaiting the next practice game.

The first game of the season in the District Football League will be at Iroquois Falls on Saturday, May 24th, when Timmins and the Falls team play.

Mr. Geo. M. Black, who for some time was on military service, returned this week to the camp, taking a position at the Porcupine Crown.

THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER

as an apt quotation with an economic application the reference that "the species that show the greatest co-operation in the animal kingdom are the ones that develop the greatest endurance and progress."

The speaker referred to the right of the workers to enjoy the pleasures of life and to have opportunity to share in the knowledge and beauties of art, music, literature and all other good things. Labor to-day asked that interference stop with the workers working out their own destinies in their own way. The workers if they would only stand together were the greatest force in the world. They must keep their ideals, however, and use their force not to hurt others but to bring the most sunshine and happiness into the lives of the most people. They must work for the real Democracy of the world, that all men might have freedom and opportunity for good and happiness. "So long as one man on earth is enslaved," said Mr. Lord, "every free man's liberty is in danger, for slavery still exists."

Mr. Lord, while admitting to others their right to other views, explained that he belonged to what might be called the economic school of labor. By a review of what had been accomplished under the most appalling difficulties for the coal miners he showed the superiority in results of this line of action as compared with the political school. He emphasized the success of the British Co-operative Societies, the Rochdale Society being the only organization in the world more far-reaching than the Standard Oil. The coal miners were now after a 6-hour day and five days a week, and he believed they would succeed by the same moderate methods as before. There were more coal mines and more coal miners than necessary, and the shorter hours would thus do away with a large measure of unemployment. Indeed they were absolutely necessary to this end. The plan could be made a success by the nationalization of the coal industry, and the U. M. W. had propounded such a plan, the miners to have an equity in the mines.

Mr. Lord spoke interestingly of the war in which he said "the workers had more at stake than anybody else." With the winning of the war, however, they would not be content so long as autocracy or injustice continued in any line anywhere. The war had been to win True Democracy. He showed what British Labor had always been carefully guarded.

Mr. Lord was not in favor of the "One Big Union" idea now popular in the West. He pointed out that there was no short cut to industrial liberty, and he feared the "One Big Union" could accomplish little but to spit the Labor movement, which would be a tragedy for the workers.

To the local workers, Mr. Lord advocated loyalty to each other and their leaders. Every man who works, he said, should be a member of the Labor movement. Only thus could progress be safely made. Certain employers objected to the union because they claimed it did not represent all their workers. The remedy for this was in the hands of the workers themselves. In fairness to himself and his family every worker should sign up with his fellows. "If you will not do this for your own pride and safety's sake," said the speaker, "do it for the sake of your wife and children that they may have a better chance for life's good."

OPENING OF AERODROME ENTERTAINMENT PARK

Mr. H. E. Burtwell (better known by his stage name of Bert Dewar) this week announces the grand opening of the "Aerodrome Entertainment Park, Ice Cream Parlors and Nurseries" at South Porcupine. The grand opening is to take place on May 24th, Saturday. The Timmins Band, 15 pieces, will play on the grandstand at the Aerodrome Park from 2 p.m. to 11 p.m., while there will be continuous dancing on the lawn and in the dance hall. Salad-lunch will be served at 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. "The lawn will be strung with fairy lights for the occasion," says Bert, "and everything will be up to date."

The prize pool game on Saturday and Monday nights between Messrs. McCann and R. Cole resulted in McCann winning the $200.00. McCann gave Cole a lead of 100 in a 500 shot game. The contest created much interest and drew good crowds to the New Empire poolroom.

The Boy Scouts will meet on Sunday morning at 10.45 a.m. at the Goldfields Hotel and march to St. Matthew's church for divine service.

TELEGRAM SAYS Mr. M. GREER ALIVE AND WELL

Report of Death of Former Constable Here Happily Proves Untrue

On the strength of apparently reliable information last week The Advance published an item to the effect that word had been received in town of the death from Influenza of Mr. M. Greer, formerly on the police force at Timmins and at Schumacher and well-known and popular in the North Land. The information as given to The Advance was based on letters and other communications received from Charlester, Que., where Mr. Greer has been residing recently and apparently the information was not open to dispute. Happily, however, it has proven to be incorrect, and The Advance has much pleasure in retracting the part of the item regarding the death, though still maintaining the part that said good things about ex-Officer Greer. On seeing the item in The Advance, Mr. W. F. Richardson, who is a cousin and a close friend of Mr. Greer, telegraphed to Mr. H. S. Barnett, a mutual friend at Shawville, it being a difficult matter to get in touch with Mr. Greer himself as he is living on a farm some distance from telegraph offices. The following is the reply received:

Shawville, Que., May 16th.
W. F. Richardson, Timmins, Ont.
Moses Greer is living and well.
H. S. Barnett.

Friends here expect Mr. Greer to visit Timmins in the near future, and such a visit would, of course, completely kill any further spread of rumor. All his many friends here in any case are delighted to learn that the report of last week is incorrect and that Mr. Greer is in good health.

HOIST HOUSE AT UNUSED SHAFT BURNED LAST WEEK

Shortly before midnight on Thursday last the people of the town were startled by an alarm of fire, the disastrous fire at South Porcupine that afternoon making people in general rather nervous in regard to fires. Shortly after the alarm, flames could be seen in the distance, apparently coming from behind the Hollinger office building when viewed from the town side of the depot. At first it was rumored that the fire was at the McIntyre mill building, but later the fire was correctly reported as at the hoist house of No. 12 shaft of the Hollinger mine. The Timmins fire brigade at the first alarm tried to get in touch with the Hollinger office by telephone to be sure that their services were not required, but no better reply could be secured than that the line was busy. On the second alarm, however, without waiting for a formal call the department started for the fire, and gave material assistance to the Hollinger fire brigade in combatting the flames. The fire was confined to the hoist house where it apparently started. This hoist house was destroyed with the hoist engine and other machinery in it. The shaft house, however, was not damaged. No. 12 shaft is not used, and so the cause of the fire there is not definitely known. It is thought, however, that the fire was caused by someone visiting the place, as often was the case, and dropping a lighted match, cigar or cigarette on the dry grass nearby or on the floor of the hoist house inside. Another theory suggests that a spark from a passing train engine may have started the blaze.
