THE FINEST CANOEING AND CAMPING ON CONTINENT

A booklet just issued by the Ontario Government says that Timagami Forest Reserve, part in Temiskaming and part in Nipissing and Sudbury, covers an area of 6,000 square miles. Lake Timagami, a gem in the heart of the Reserve, is dotted with 1,400 islands, and with an adjoining embroidery of innumerable lesser lakes, is said to be the finest canoeing and camping district on the continent. Temiskaming with its hundreds of lakes and net work of spruce and pine forests, is the fisherman's dream and the hunter's paradise. With what the booklet says The Advance has no objection. It is all true enough and more than true. But something more might be said. Further north, and within easy access of such objects of special popular interest as the gold mines, the big pulp and paper industries of the North Land there are beauty spots, with wonderful supplies of fish and game to hand, that might well be featured for the tourists, the hunters, the fishermen and the health seekers. The proximity of the gold mines and the paper and allied industries give an added and special interest to the world in general in these beauty places of the far North. To the individual, firm or government, who will adequately use the opportunity, there is fame and fortune awaiting. The chief requirements are finances and good advertising sense until the beauty places are made known. The Government would seem to be the best equipped from the financial standpoint, and it is a pity that for advertising and general management politics would likely prevent the best use of the opportunity. There are available wonder places in the Great North Land at which city people would pay almost any price to spend a quiet, healthful and delightful summer of good sport, if they only knew of the existence here of these places and were certain of proper accommodation and attention.

GOLD DISCOVERY NEAR THE PAS SEEMS GOOD ONE.

Prof. DeLury, of Winnipeg, who recently examined the Gordon claims at Copper Lake says that if the values hold the find is a phenomenal one. As a prospect, he says, according to The Pas Herald, that it looks as good or better than the Hollinger mine at Porcupine. "Magnificent" says the Professor also. "How do you get that way?" the South End Masquerade Dance bills ask. The professor says that the larger vein on the Gordon find would average 18 feet wide and would extend across four or five locations. The ore had been assayed at over $10.00 to the ton. Prof. Wallace, mineralogist of the Pas, has also visited the new find and was very favorably impressed. Uncovered at different distances the lode appears to be two miles in length. The width varies from 10 to 30 feet and is continuous on the surface for 1,400 feet. The high-grade gold occurs in a vein paralleling the large ore body at a distance of about 1200 feet to the south-west. This vein is exposed for about 300 feet, and consists of a schist zone of about four feet wide. At the discovery of the high-grade the quartz is 18 inches wide, and from quartz to wall there are quartz stringers and sheets of schist. At the bottom of a five-foot pit the high-grade is about five inches wide. On the surface it was from 3 to 4 inches in width. This high-grade is unusual rich, some of it being almost pure gold. Undoubtedly, the find appears a remarkable one and much credit is due The Pas Herald for the intelligent publicity given the discovery. The Pas Herald has played a much greater part in advertising the discovery than perhaps the people of the Manitoba camp realize or acknowledge. However, the tendency to compare the find to the Hollinger is a little premature. The Hollinger is a proven proposition, milling average ore of $10 per ton, to the extent of 700,000 tons per year, with no limit in sight. The Pas proposition is as yet in the first prospecting stages. It may be a second Croesus, a second Dome, a second Hollinger, or it may be only a second Silver Jewel Mine. There are no failures in the gold mines of the Porcupine to point to. As one of the diamond drill experts of the district once phrased it, there is not a single Porcupine property that has had proper management and finances that has failed to make good on development.
