TWAS A NICE DAY, BUT THE WRONG KIND OF KNIGHT.

Mr. T. F. King admits that the joke was on him, but it was so kindly and good-humouredly carried through that he does not object at all. Recently he was told that the Knights of Columbus were having a dinner, and as a good Knight he thought he would attend. Just at the moment it did not strike him as peculiar that they should be holding their dinner in the Presbyterian church. Possibly, if anyone had called his attention to this fact as an odd feature, he would have replied that in the North Land the people are so democratic, so friendly and so little given to drawing lines of creed or anything like that, that it was quite natural that the most convenient place should be used, irrespective of unimportant details. Anyway, Tom, so the story goes, went to the dinner. He knew many there, but missed a few that he felt should have been there. But everybody gave him a very hearty welcome and soon he was seated at the table in the midst of the pleasant company. After a time he began to be a little suspicious. The goat did not have its whiskers parted the same way as the Knights of Columbus initiating goat, and there were other little things that seemed different to the K. of C. Then, he discovered that he had been welcomed into a meeting, not of the Knights of Columbus, but of the Knights Templar, an advanced Masonic fraternity. Tom excused himself and wished to withdraw, but they would not let him. He had to stay to the end of the little banquet. But it was not much of an ordeal. Everybody was pleasant and friendly and the true spirit of fraternity was in evidence on all sides. The special guest of this special meeting of the Knights Templar is reported as saying that he thought the group of Knights Templar were fine enough fellows to be Knights of Columbus, while the special hosts of this special day were much tempted to make a Knight Templar of Tom.

TORONTO JEALOUS OF TIMMINS HOCKEY BOYS.

Apparently Toronto does not like the Queen City hockey players to be attracted to the Porcupine by the virtues of the growing country. Toronto, however, will have to accept the fact that this is a young man's country and the life here will have an increasing attraction for strong and red-blooded young men. For young men to come here in legitimate way, of course, can in no way prejudice their amateur standing in hockey or anything else, and the Porcupine is securing no hockey players except in legitimate ways, so the suggestion of the writer in The Toronto World regarding difficulty in securing the necessary credentials is neither fair nor truthful. But to the same writer thanks are due for well-merited words of praise for some of the Porcupine Hockey team. As the old Irishman said:—Thank ye for yer compliments, but god darn ye for yer imprudence. The writer referred to, in a recent issue of The Toronto World says:— "Something akin to a sensation transpired in local athletic circles a few days ago when it was learned that Jesse Spring and Duke McCurry, two of the most promising all-round performers hereabouts, had gone to Timmins to reside. Both boys are adepts at baseball, having played with the St. Mary, and are also boxers of no mean ability. They are not unknown to fame in a rugby sense and Spring made a name for himself last summer as a defence player on the champion St. Simons lacrosse team. McCurry is rated a coming star on the cinder path, and all things considered the pair are probably the most versatile youths ever developed in the Queen City. It is as hockeyists that they particularly shine and there is grave suspicion that their translation to the north country has something to do with the activities of the club in that mining community. In any event that is the view assumed by the athletic authorities, and I am credibly informed that there is more than a possibility that the boys may have some difficulty in securing the necessary credentials from the union.

MOTION PICTURE EXPERT SECURING MANY VIEWS.

Mr. M. J. Shields, the Ontario Government moving picture expert, has been busy during the past week securing views of Timmins and district. Last week views were taken of some of the leading business places, and on Saturday evening pictures were made of the big crowd at the Veteran's Dance in King's Hall. Monday evening this week arrangements were made for filming of the crowds coming from the theatre after the show. A number of other views are being taken this week, and the film should give a splendid review of life in Timmins. The pictures are to be shown down south, in the U. S. A. and in Europe to give a correct picture of life as it really is in this part of the North Land.
